

Contents

Preface	vii
1 Preliminaries	1
1.1 The personal and political background	1
1.2 The style	5
1.3 The different kinds of writings and their salient features	8
2 Philosophy of the social sciences	15
2.1 Objectivity and ethical neutrality	15
2.2 What are we to understand by 'understanding'?	26
2.3 Social actions and methodological individualism	34
2.4 Ideal types	41
3 Presiding substantive ideas	51
3.1 Stress on open-ended causation	51
3.2 Non predetermined evolution instead of predestinarian evolutionism	53
3.3 The weakest point: the concept of rationalisation	58
4 Systematic comparative sociology	83
4.1 Law	83
4.2 Religion	92
4.3 General comments on types of power	96
4.4 Bureaucracy	99
4.5 Charisma	107
4.6 Feudalism and patrimonialism	110

CONTENTS

5	Historical comparative sociology: the explanation of the rise of capitalism	114
5.1	Analysis and historical research	114
5.2	Predatory versus productive capitalism	119
5.3	Capitalism and the religions	123
5.4	Ethics and economics	134
5.5	The position of cities and the military factor	139
6	Conclusion: what should we learn from Weber to advance farther?	144
	Index	148