Contents

Acknowledgements —— VII

Permissions Spider Web, Labyrinth, Tightrope Walk —— XI

1 Introduction: The Network in US American Literature and Culture —— 1
1.1 Mapping Relations in Jena Osman's "The Network" —— 3
1.2 The Network as a Cultural Practice of Modernity —— 5
1.3 The Network and US Culture —— 9
1.4 Genealogy as a Network Method —— 12
1.5 Cultural Functions of the Network: Infrastructure, Metaphor, Model, Map —— 15
1.6 The Emergence of Networks in US Culture —— 22

2 Project(ing an) Interconnected America: Nineteenth Century Visions of Material Networks, Transcendental Links, and Alternative Communities —— 26
2.1 America as Network: Alexis de Tocqueville's Visual Conceptualization of a Horizontal Republic —— 29
2.2 Between Material and Ideal – Transcendentalist Networks —— 44
2.3 Walt Whitman's Reconciliation of Material and Ideal Networks —— 53
2.4 The Utopia of Network Communities —— 63
2.5 Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Blithedale Romance and The Inextricable Knots of Narrative —— 74

3 "A Movement Toward Expanded Connectedness" – Networks of Evolution in Pragmatist and Naturalist Literature —— 85
3.1 "A Network of Attachments" – Pragmatism and Relational Experience —— 86
3.2 Communication Networks and The Missing Links of Experience in Henry James's The Ambassadors —— 95
3.3 "Being a Relation is One Thing" – Gertrude Stein's Mutable Connections —— 106
3.4 "Complexities Which Still Will Be Complexities as Long as the World Lasts": Marianne Moore and the Ethics of Networks —— 112
3.5 Frank Norris's The Octopus and the "Hopeless Entanglements" of Growth —— 125

Bibliografische Informationen
https://d-nb.info/1278699376

digitalisiert durch DEUTSCHE NATIONAL BIBLIOTHEK

4 Mapping Alternatives: Postwar Networks and the Forking Paths of Knowledge — 137

4.1 Heterotopia, Rhizome, Sociograms, Feedback Loops, Archive – (A) Network (of) Theories From Poststructuralism to Cybernetics — 139

4.2 "Sinister Connections" and "Windowless Mazes": Thomas Pynchon's Gravity's Rainbow and the Search for the "Network of all Plots" — 154

4.3 "Alternative Trails": The Urgency of Reconnection in Leslie Marmon Silko's Almanac of the Dead — 169

4.4 The Archive as Labyrinth: The Demian Katz Gamebook Collection — 184

5 Recentering the Human: Contemporary Fiction and the Popularization of the Network — 198

5.1 Current Network Trajectories: Globalization, Ecology, and Neural Nets — 201

5.2 Lines in the Dust: Ecological Recognition in Karen Tei Yamashita's Tropic of Orange — 212

5.3 Colum McCann's Let The Great World Spin and The Balancing Act of The Global Information Subject — 227

5.4 "Everything Matters": The Responsibility of Return in Richard Powers's The Echo Maker — 240

6 Conclusion — 255

Works Cited — 265

Index — 281