

Contents

Acknowledgments	vi
Introduction	1
1 Humanism, Anti-Authoritarianism, and Form	13
2 “We Have No Duties to Anything Nonhuman”: Richard Rorty’s Anti-Authoritarianism	27
3 Pragmatism, Humanism, and Form	69
4 “... and the Practice Has to Speak for Itself”: Wittgenstein, Pragmatism, and Anti-Authoritarianism	93
5 Marxism, Form, and the Negation of Aesthetic Synthesis	107
6 “Nothing Is Known—Only Realized”: Postcritique, Bruno Latour, and the Idea of a Positive Aesthetics	139
7 “I Turned to the Poets”: Humanist Stories of Progress	153
Conclusion	183
Notes	189
References	235
Index	245