

Contents

Foreword	5
1 Introduction	13
Aim of the Report	13
Course of the Investigation and Design of the Report	15
2 The Die-casting Foundry and the Organizational System before 1969	17
Operations and Organization	17
The Production Process for Pressure Die-casting and Subsequent Operations	18
Organization of Work, Production Control and Wage System in the Die-casting Shop 1968—1969	21
3 Changeover to Time Wages and other Changes	25
Reasons for Introducing a New Wage System	25
Time Wages are Introduced	30
Planned Change in the Organization	31
4 Productivity during the Time Wage Period	34
Changes in the Casters' Level of Performance	34
Productivity in the Die-casting Foundry as a Whole	35
Comparison of the Two Productivity Controls	39
Conclusions	41
5 Developments in other Factors during the Time Wage Period	42
Personnel Turnover, Absence and Job Satisfaction	42
Accident Rate	45
Scrap Percentage and Operating Efficiency	45

12 Contents

- Steady Wages and a Simpler Wage Administration System 45
- The Planned Organizational Change 46
- 6 Change in the Wage System and the Organization, 1971 48
 - Doubts About the Time Wage System 48
 - Changeover to Monthly Wages with Premium Payments 50
 - Change in the Organization 51
- 7 Some Indicators of Developments under Monthly Premium Wages and a New Organization 54
 - Productivity and Material Scrapped 55
 - Personnel Turnover and Absence 57
 - Accident Rate 59
 - Attitude Studies among Employees 60
 - Some other Indicators of Developments during 1971—72 65
 - Conclusions 69
- 8 Problems and Changes in the New System 72
 - The Wage System 72
 - Organization — the First-men and Information 74
 - Development as a Problem-oriented Change Process 84
- 9 Summary 87
 - Changeover from Piecework Wages to Time Wages, 1969 87
 - Developments during the Time Wage Period 1969—70 88
 - Changeover to Monthly Premium Wages and a New Organization 92
 - Indicators of Developments, 1971—72 93
 - Concluding Comments 94
- Appendix 97