

CONTENTS

Series Introduction	v
Acknowledgements	vii
List of Contributors	xi
Editors' Introduction	xiii

Part I: The 'Cambridge' controversy

Interest rate determinations and oversimplifying parables: a summing up Paul A. Samuelson	3
On a change in the notion of equilibrium in recent work on value and distribution: a comment on Samuelson Pierangelo Garegnani	25
On the rates of return on investment Domenico Mario Nuti	47
Discussion Robert M. Solow	70
Reply Domenico Mario Nuti	74
The rate of profit in intertemporal equilibrium John Eatwell and Edward J. Nell	77
Discussion Domenico Mario Nuti	116

Part II: Technology

Characterizations of technology in capital theory Paul Zarembka	123
Discussion Robert M. Solow	138
Reply Paul Zarembka	141

Real Wicksell effects and regular economies Edwin Burmeister	145
The Hamiltonian representation of static competitive or efficient allocation David Cass	165
Discussion David A. Starrett	183
Part III: Foundations for new approaches
Capital theory in the short run C. J. Bliss	187
Discussion Kazuo Sato	202
Substitution along the time axis Carl Christian von Weizsäcker	207
Discussion Elmar Wolfstetter	229
Marx from a von Neumann viewpoint Michio Morishima	239
Discussion David A. Starrett	267
Reply Michio Morishima	268
Subject index	271
Author index	274