

CONTENTS

	PAGE
INTRODUCTION: RELATION OF THE MISSIONARY TO BANTU RELIGION	xvii
Theme: An intelligent comprehension of the true inwardness of the indigenous religion is essential to the efficiency of Europeans (especially missionaries) who are working in Africa for the uplift of the tribesmen; without this knowledge they may harm those whom they earnestly desire to help.
A craftsman must know his materials as well as his tools	xvii
Missionaries must study African religion	xviii
Jesus came to fulfil, not to destroy	xx
Supercilious Europeans	xxii
Christianity, not a foreign religion	xxii
Insight into heathenism helpful in Church Discipline	xxiii
Spiritual pathology	xxiv
Ritual is a variety of the vernacular	xxv
CHAPTER
I. ANCESTOR-SPIRITS	I
For the study of Bantu religion, our first need is to learn what we can of the Bantu way of thinking of the incarnate soul and the discarnate spirit.
Religion, the basis of Bantu life	1
Survival after death	2
Origin of the idea	3
Inattention to the nature of the soul and its after-life	4
Native reticence	6
Immortality	6
Nature of the soul	7
Distinction between "soul" and "spirit"	10
Is the soul born with the body?	13
The soul, a counterpart of the body	16
The soul, a miniature of the man	17
Spirits of cattle	19
Resurrection of the body	21
Destruction of the body	23
Importance of mortuary rites	27
Fictional funerals	29

CHAPTER	PAGE
Affinity of spirit and corpse	32
Canonisation of the dead	35
Servitors of the dead	44
Locality of the spirit-world	57
Trysting-place for worshipper and spirit	68
The spirit-world, a counterpart of this world	72
Earthly concerns of ancestral spirits	76
Knowledge and power of the spirits	77
Character of the spirits	82
Summary of this chapter	88
II. REVELATION BY ANCESTOR-SPIRITS	90
Having obtained a general idea of what the Bantu mean by the souls of the living and the spirits of the dead, we proceed to examine their conception of the relation between living men and the worshipful dead. The first step in this inquiry is to discover the ways in which the spirits of the dead are thought to reveal their will to the living.
Revelation in dreams	90
Revelation by calamity	96
Revelation by ecstasy and trance	98
Revelation by "possession"	104
Revelation by "prophets"	112
Revelation by divination	135
Revelation by reincarnation	150
III. ANCESTOR-WORSHIP	178
The second step in our inquiry is to ascertain what events move the Bantu to seek the help of these divinities; for the nature of these events is indicative of the character and extent of the influence of the gods upon the everyday life of the people.
No "Festival of the Dead"	178
Tribal and family worship	179
Occasions for the worship of family-gods:
Birth	182
Marriage	186
Sickness	189
Reunion of the family	196
Care of the family cattle	199
Other occasions	201
Occasions for the worship of tribal gods:
Rain	203
Seedtime	219

CONTENTS

CHAPTER	XV PAGE
Firstfruits	225
Harvest	251
Fishing and hunting	256
War	263
 IV. MODES OF ANCESTOR-WORSHIP	 266
The third step in our inquiry is to discover what the Bantu think they can do to secure the help of these divinities; or, in other words, what places are sacred to the gods, and what symbols, rites, etc., are thought to win their favour.
Shrines, altars, chapels, temples	266
Ancestral stones	285
Sacred fire	290
Images	296
“Fetish”	313
Relics of the dead	328
The priest in ancestor-worship	333
Sacrificial victims	336
Selection of the victim	348
Offering the sacrifice	352
Domestic animals consecrated to the gods	361
Libations and offerings	364
Praise and prayer	368
Confession, meditation, and faith	373
 V. ANCESTOR-WORSHIP AND CHRISTIANITY	 380
Equipped with this knowledge, we gain some insight into the soul of the worshipper; and so we proceed to gauge the grip of his religion upon his ethics, the meaning that he gives to his rites and symbols, the inner discontents, yearnings and satisfactions that are betokened by his behaviour, and the extent to which his old religion has prepared him to receive Christianity.
Influence of ancestor-worship upon its votaries	380
Ancestor-worship, the source of Bantu ethics	381
Bantu words for “sin”	387
Future punishment	389
Weakness of Bantu ethics	390
Ethical points of attachment for the Christian message	394
Significance of Bantu religious rites	396
Christianity and the trappings of paganism	400
Theological affinities with Christianity	417
The experience behind ceremony and theology	423
Weakness of ancestor-worship	430
The fate of Bantu ancestor-worship	435

CONTENTS

	PAGE
GENERAL INDEX	441
INDEX OF AFRICAN CLANS, TRIBES AND LOCALITIES MENTIONED	457
LIST OF BOOKS REFERRED TO IN THIS VOLUME	461