
Contents

Introduction	I
1. "Wir müssen mehr wissen": Institutional and Ideological Foundations of a Jewish Statistics	28
2. The Bureau for Jewish Statistics and the Development of Jewish Social Science 1904–1931	56
3. The Wages of Modernity: Fertility, Intermarriage, and the Debate over Jewish Decline	74
4. The Pathological Circle: Medical Images and Statistics in Jewish Social Science	96
5. The Diaspora as Cure: Non-Zionist Uses of Social Science	139
6. Measuring and Picturing Jews: Racial Anthropology and Iconography	169
7. National Economy and the Debate over Jewish Regeneration	194
Conclusion: A Usable Knowledge	217
Notes	245
Bibliography	299
Index	329