

Contents

List of figures	xi
List of tables	xiv
Foreword	xvii
Introduction	xxiii
1 The Internet has changed your world	1
Developments in the Netherlands	2
Acceptance	4
Changes and developments	6
World Wide Web	8
Uses	14
Structure of Internet applications and facilities	17
The Internet and competitive conditions	23
Relationship with customers	25
Relationship with suppliers	26
Newcomers	28
Substitute products	29
Summary	30
2 Finding your e-market	32
Product	34
Price	35
Place	36
Promotion	37
Strategy	38
Internally focused orientation	41
Target group orientation	42
Customer-focused orientation	44
Network-focused orientation	45

The desired orientation	47
Summary	50
3 What the Internet can and can't do	52
Changes	52
Functions of the Internet	54
Acceptance problems and potential conflicts	71
Summary	76
4 Getting the best out of the Internet	77
A marketing model	78
Changes in the nature of the product	80
Changes in product concept	81
A rational and sales-oriented site	83
Conditions for a good Web site	87
Product policy	88
The product concept and affiliates	90
Changes in distribution	92
Important values	95
Virtual communities	98
The procurement function	100
Summary	103
5 e-Customer focus	105
The role of the database	105
The role of the service desk	107
One-to-one marketing	110
Customer relationship management	115
Adjustments to marketing tools and activities	120
Summary	131
6 The digital market place	133
The first Internet buyers and their impact	133

Minimum interaction, maximum customer bonding	138
Changes in the product concept	142
Product digitization	145
Changes in buying behaviour	146
Summary	150
7 Not everyone is equal on the Internet	152
Recording	152
Search behaviour	154
Domain names	160
Women on the Internet	161
Other factors influencing the use of the Internet	167
Differences due to the use of different devices	171
Summary	178
8 Strategic choices: winning or losing	180
Basis of change	180
Market reach and product complexity	186
Adjusting market communication	187
Marketing orientations and market reach	192
Strategic cube model	203
Integrated model	208
Summary	209
9 Think it: do it	211
Business concept	211
Product concept	212
Demand concept	214
Distribution concept	216
Conceptual framework	218
Organization	219
Communication	223

Realization and implementation	225
Summary	226
Index	229

List of figures

1.1	Internet use in the Netherlands	3
1.2	Planet Internet, an Internet service provider, an initiative by KPN Telecom (KPN also owns, for example, Planet Internet, Het Net and World Access)	9
1.3	The first-generation Internet: a network of computer systems	12
1.4	The second-generation Internet: servers and computers linked to an information backbone	13
1.5	New dimension Internet applications	15
1.6	The commercial opportunities of the Internet	16
1.7	The structure of the Internet	18
1.8	Competitive forces that lead to changes in market conditions	24
1.9	Influence of the Internet on competitive powers	30
2.1	Elements of customer orientation	46
2.2	Marketing orientations	49
4.1	Marketing model based on the product and distribution variants	79
4.2	Relationship between the function of the Internet and marketing	82
4.3	The buying process versus the selling process	84
4.4	The integration of the selling and buying processes in a market place	86
4.5	Changes in product policy	90
4.6	Changes in distribution policy	95
4.7	Independer.nl helps customers select the best insurance	97
4.8	Golf.com, a community for golf fans, with news, information, products, chat services, all focused on golf fans	100
4.9	The link between buyer and seller systems	103
5.1	The one-to-one marketing phases	115
5.2	The traditional organizational structure	121
5.3	Integrated CRM model	129
5.4	Core competencies of CRM	131
6.1	The impact of interactivity on market relations	135

6.2	Priceline.com gives a boost to buyer power	137
6.3	www.baby.com not only sells a complete range for babies and expectant or new mothers but also provides a host of information, an on-line community and a chat room	140
6.4	www.ebay.com is an auction site selling a large range of items, both new and used. You can offer items for sale, and there is a chat room	141
6.5	www.wine.co.uk sells wine on the basis of registered preferences and buyers' profiles	143
6.6	www.diet.com responds to personal needs	144
6.7	Landsend.com lets consumers create their own shirt by selecting and combining various components	147
6.8	Expedia.com buys in bulk to cater for future demand	149
7.1	Dimensions of search behaviour	155
7.2	Despite considerable marketing effort, the clothing company www.booo.com was unsuccessful	158
7.3	In August 2000 dressmart.com decided to reduce its activities and concentrate on the home market in Sweden	159
7.4	Privacy statement by www.smartmoney.com . This statement also describes smartmoney's cookie policy	161
7.5	Landsend.com caters for women visitors	165
7.6	Male and female search behaviour on the Internet	167
7.7	Use of i-Mode in Japan	177
8.1	Market reach versus product complexity	183
8.2	The use of technology in marketing activities related to market reach and product complexity	185
8.3	How technology affects market reach and product complexity	190
8.4	Correlation between market reach, product complexity and marketing orientation	193
8.5	Product and distribution channel choices	195
8.6	Relationship between the Internet and product concept	199
8.7	Strategic choice process, based on product and/or service supply	202
8.8	Strategic cube model	203
8.9	Relationship between strategic choices and Internet use	206
8.10	Using group concepts with strategic choices	207
8.11	Integrated 'business' model	208
8.12	Strategic choice process, based on market approach	210
9.1	Choice process	213

9.2	Sales process versus buying process	215
9.3	Technological developments that can induce market changes	218
9.4	Organizational change	223
9.5	Integrated system set-up	224
9.6	Implementation scenario	226

List of tables

1.1	Number of Internet connections by the end of 2000	2
1.2	Ratio of men to women on the Internet and time spent on the Internet per month	3
1.3	The elderly on the Internet	4
1.4	Development phases of the Internet	10
1.5	Internet generations	14
1.6	Specific Internet-related products and services	18
1.7	Examples of functional uses of the Internet	23
2.1	Survey of evolution in marketing and marketing orientation	33
2.2	Basic value and core competency per marketing instrument	39
2.3	Schedule of marketing orientations	40
2.4	Application of marketing instruments with internal orientation	42
2.5	Application of marketing instruments with target group orientation	44
2.6	Application of marketing instruments with customer-focused orientation	46
2.7	Application of marketing instruments with network orientation	48
3.1	Effect of e-mail use	64
4.1	The applicability of the marketing model	81
4.2	Relationship between distribution and customer loyalty	94
4.3	Most frequently visited Web sites	98
5.1	CRM model based on customer contacts	122
7.1	Favourite sites for men and women	163
7.2	Favourite categories for men and women	163
7.3	The intensity with which men and women use the Internet	166
8.1	Effect of strategic choices	191
8.2	How the product concept influences sales support	198
8.3	Relationship between distribution concept and Internet use	200
8.4	Possible product choices, demand-based	205

8.5	Products and distribution choices	206
9.1	Consequences of product choices	214
9.2	Consequences of the demand concept	216
9.3	Relationship between product concept and demand concept	216
9.4	Consequences of the distribution concept	217
9.5	The externally oriented component	220
9.6	The internally focused component	221
9.7	Information clusters	223