

Contents

Illustrations xi

Preface and Acknowledgments xiii

- 1 The Bell Curve and the Nineteenth-Century Organic Society 3
- 2 The Facial Angle, Physiognomy, and Racial Theory 23
- 3 The Ambivalence of Phrenology 49
- 4 Human Geography, “Race,” and Empire 85
- 5 Ethnology and the Civilizability of “Races” 122
- 6 Constructing the “Other” in the Early Social Sciences 158

Appendices

- 1 Active Members of the Société phréno-logique de Paris or supporters of phrenology 193
- 2 Société de géographie de Paris Founders 195
- 3 Members of the Société ethnologique de Paris 202

Bibliography 213

Index 239

Illustrations

- 1 Facial angles of Europeans and Africans, P. Camper, Dissertation sur les variétés naturelles qui caractérisent la physionomie des hommes dans des climats et des différents âges. Paris, 1792, tableau VI, figure 1. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 27
- 2 Portrait of Georges Cuvier (1769–1832), naturalist and advocate of facial angle. From T. Poupin, Caractères phrénologiques et physiognomiques des contemporains les plus célèbres. Paris, 1837, plate XXIX opposite t.1, p. 205, Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 29
- 3 Profile of a Man of Truth and Expression, from Johann Caspar Lavater, Essays on Physiognomy. London: H.G. Symonds, 1797, plate 204, 3:203 32
- 4 From the Frog to Apollo, from Johann Caspar Lavater, Essays on Physiognomy. Trans. Thomas Holcroft. London, 4th ed. c. 1844. Text additions from 496–7. Plates 78 and 79. Copyright Ross Woodrow and the University of Newcastle, Australia. “Digital Lavater.” <http://www.newcastle.edu.au/discipline/fine-art/pubs/lavater/lav-p78.htm> 34
- 5 Portrait of Julien-Joseph Virey (1775–1846), pharmacist, physician, and advocate of two distinct human species. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 41
- 6 Portrait of J.-B.-G.-M. Bory de Saint-Vincent (1780–1846), military officer, naturalist, geographer, and believer in fifteen human species. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 45

- 7 Phrenological assessment of Franz Joseph Gall (1758–1828), founder of phrenology. From T. Poupin, Caractères phrénologiques et physiognomiques des contemporains les plus célèbres. Paris, 1837, plate I after t. 1, p. 103. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 53
- 8 Phrenological organs according to Johann Gaspard Spurzheim, from T. Poupin, Caractères phrénologiques et physiognomiques des contemporains les plus célèbres. Paris, 1837, frontispice. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 55
- 9 Measurement of Regions of Head, Caspar Spurzheim, Phrenology in Connexion with Physiognomy, London: Treuttel, Wurtz, and Richter, 1826, plate next to p. 31 57
- 10 Phrenological portrait of F.-J.-V. Broussais, notorious physician and partisan of phrenology. From T. Poupin, Caractères phrénologiques et physiognomiques des contemporains les plus célèbres. Paris, 1837, plate X after t. 2, p. 4. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 60
- 11 Portrait of Louis-Claude Desaulces de Freycinet (1779–1842), Pacific explorer. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 97
- 12 Portrait of chiefs of Tahiti and New Guinea natives from Louis-Isidore Duperrey, Voyage autour du monde ... sur la corvette La Coquille, Paris: Arthus Bertrand, 1826–1830, plates 12 and 36. Clichés Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 108
- 13 Portrait of Jules-Sébastien-César Dumont d'Urville (1790–1842), Pacific explorer and classifier of Oceanic peoples. Cliché Bibliothèque nationale de France, Paris 110