

Contents

Figures and Tables	ix
Preface	xi
Introduction	3
1. The German Economy, "Foreigners," and Jews	14
2. Reunification with East Germany and the Refugee Problem	32
3. The Question of Economic Threat and Anti-Foreign Sentiment: The Early Years of Unification	56
4. More Recent Evidence of Anti-Foreign Sentiment: The 1996 ALLBUS General Social Survey	79
5. An Economic Theory of Antisemitism? Exploring Attitudes in the New German State	114
6. Antisemitism in Germany at the Millennium	131
7. The Economy, Minorities, and the German Future	156
Postscript: The 2002 National Election	171
Appendix A: Coding and Distribution of the Exogenous Variables	177
Appendix B: Codes and Distributions of Predictor Variables	178
Appendix C: Questions and Variable Coding	181
Notes	183
References	189
Index	199

Figures and Tables

Figures

1.1. Yearly German Unemployment Rate (Total, 1961–2000)	29
1.2. GDP: Real Growth in Germany (Percentage of Yearly Variation, 1961–2000)	29
3.1. A LISREL Model of Anti-Foreign Sentiment in Germany	63
3.2. A LISREL Model of Attitudes toward Immigration Policy	71
3.3. LISREL Estimates of Independent Variables on Policy Preferences in the Former GDR, Standardized Solution	74
3.4. LISREL Estimates of Independent Variables on Policy Preferences in Western Germany, Standardized Solution	75
5.1. A LISREL Model of Antisemitism in Germany	122
7.1. Acts of Violence with Proven or Suspected Right-Extremist Motivation per 100,000 Inhabitants	161

Tables

2.1. Asylum Applicants in Selected European Countries	41
3.1. German Attitudes toward Refugee Policy	57
3.2. German Attitudes toward Gastarbeiter	59
3.3. German Economic Satisfaction	60
3.4. German Attitudes toward Foreigners in General	61
3.5. German Attitudes on “Mixing” and “Superiority”	64
3.6. Estimation of the LISREL Model of Anti-Foreign Sentiment	67

4.1. Elements of German Pride: Western Germany and Eastern Germany	80
4.2. Contact with Foreigners: Western Germany and Eastern Germany	81
4.3. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: Lifestyle	83
4.4. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: Neighbor	86
4.5. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: Marriage	87
4.6. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: General Social Behavior	89
4.7. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: Naturalization Criteria	91
4.8. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: Equal Rights for Minority Groups	93
4.9. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans: Communal Voting Rights	94
4.10. Percentage of Germans Who Believe Various Discriminatory Acts Are "Not Right" or "Absolutely Not Right"	95
4.11. Responses of Former GDR Residents, by Level of Job Anxiety, on Various Measures of Anti-Foreign Sentiment	97
4.12. Regression of Contact, Sociodemographic, Political, Psychological, and Economic Variables with Measures of Anti-Foreign Sentiment	104
5.1. Distribution of the Indicators of the Antisemitism-Holocaust Interpretation Variable	120
5.2. Distribution of the Indicators of the "Classical" Antisemitism Variable	124
6.1. Mean Differences in Responses between Eastern and Western Germans on Measures of Antisemitism	147
6.2. Regression of Contact, Sociodemographic, Political, Psychological, and Economic Variables with Measures of Antisemitism	149
7.1. Annual Unemployment Rate in Germany and the United States, 1994-2001	159