
Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	1
1. Competitive intelligence	5
A dozen myths about competitive intelligence	7
Why CI is important to an organization	14
2. Setting up a competitive intelligence project	15
The competitive intelligence model	16
Problem areas	28
3. Finding the information you need	30
Researching companies	31
Conducting your needs assessment – what types of company information do you need?	33
Formulate your question	37
Organizing the process	38
Interviewing 101	55
4. Sources of information	59
Government sources	61
Industry associations	63
Chambers of commerce	63
Sources of information by country	64
Other sources of information	81
5. Online and electronic sources of information	83
Internet essentials	84

6. Analysis: turning information into intelligence	116
Market analysis	118
Industry analysis	124
Company analysis	129
7. Analysing your company through benchmarking	145
Myths about benchmarking	146
Types of competitive benchmarking	149
The process of benchmarking	150
8. Presenting and using your findings	156
9. Technology tools and techniques	165
The Internet	166
Business intelligence software	166
Databases	170
10. Legal and ethical considerations	175
Intellectual property and trade secrets	178
National laws and anti-competitive business practices	185
11. Competing around the world	191
Culture	192
Language	192
Political and legal environment	193
Competing in selected countries	196
12. Setting up a competitive intelligence function	206
13. Counter-intelligence: protecting your company from competitors	219
14. Competitive intelligence in action	230
Competitive intelligence at Corel Corporation	231
Discovering and evaluating a new competitor	235
Deregulation of an industry	240
Predicting successful mergers and acquisitions	244
References	248
Index	249