

Contents

Series editor's foreword	vii
Preface and acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	1
Surveillance has two faces	3
Key themes	5
How this book works	8
Part one Surveillance societies	13
1 Disappearing bodies	15
Reconfiguring time and space	17
Blurring public and private	20
Recombining technology and society	23
2 Invisible frameworks	28
Commonalities and variations	30
Surveillance diffused through society	33
Social orchestration	35
3 Leaky containers	37
Policing by surveillance	39
Watching workers	40
Covering consumers	43
Deregulation and risk	44
Part two The spread of surveillance	49
4 Surveillant sorting in the city	51
Social control in the city	52

vi Surveillance society

SimCity and urban realities	55
Urban surveillance	56
Under the camera	60
SimCity and the real world	66
5 Body parts and probes	69
The body from site to source	71
Identity, identification and modernity	72
Body surveillance technologies	75
Body surveillance in different sectors	77
Movement, action and risk	81
6 Global data flows	88
Globalization and surveillance	90
Global security: Comint	94
Global security: controlling borders	97
The world wide web of surveillance	101
Globalized surveillance	103
 Part three Surveillance scenarios	 105
7 New directions in theory	107
Computers and modern surveillance	109
Superpanopticon and hypersurveillance	114
New surveillance in theory	118
Returning the body	123
8 The politics of surveillance	126
Regulative responses	128
Mobilizing responses	131
Resistance in context	134
Why resistance is limited	135
9 The future of surveillance	141
Modern and postmodern surveillance	141
Toward a new approach	149
Re-embodying persons	151
Notes	155
Bibliography	174
Index	181