

CONTENTS

Preface	vii–ix
Acknowledgements	x
I Galen in the Renaissance Galen: Problems and Prospects, ed. V. Nutton. London, 1981	229–262
II Explorations in Renaissance Writings on the Practice of Medicine The Medical Renaissance of the Sixteenth Century, ed. A. Wear, R. K. French and I. M. Lonie. Cambridge, 1985	118–145 312–317
III William Harvey and the ‘Way of the Anatomists’ History of Science 21. Chalfont St Giles, Bucks. 1983	223–249
IV Making Sense of Health and the Environment in Early Modern England Medicine in Society: Historical Essays, ed. A. Wear. Cambridge, 1992	119–147
V Religious Beliefs and Medicine in Early Modern England The Task of Healing. Medicine, Religion and Gender in England and the Netherlands, 1450–1800, ed. H. Marland and M. Pelling. Rotterdam, 1996	145–169
VI Puritan Perceptions of Illness in Seventeenth Century England Patients and Practitioners: Lay Perceptions of Medicine in Pre-Industrial Society, ed. R. Porter. Cambridge, 1985	55–99
VII Medical Ethics in Early Modern England Doctors and Ethics: The Earlier Historical Setting of Professional Ethics, ed. A. Wear, J. Geyer-Kordesch, R. K. French. Amsterdam/Atlanta, GA, 1993	98–130

VIII	Caring for the Sick Poor in St Bartholomew Exchange: 1580–1676 Living and Dying in London ed. W. F. Bynum and Roy Porter. Medical History, Supplement No. 11. London, 1991	41–60
IX	The Popularization of Medicine in Early Modern England The Popularization of Medicine, 1650–1850, ed. R. Porter. London, 1992	17–41
X	Medical Practice in Late Seventeenth- and Early Eighteenth-Century England: Continuity and Union The Medical Revolution of the Seventeenth Century, ed. R. K. French and A. Wear. Cambridge, 1989	294–320
XI	Epistemology and Learned Medicine in Early Modern England Knowledge and the Scholarly Medical Traditions, ed. D. Bates. Cambridge, 1995	151–173