

Series Foreword	vii
Foreword by Ford Rowan	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	xv
Contributors	xxv
I Public Health	1
1 "Of Utmost National Urgency": The Lynchburg Hepatitis Study, 1942	3
Paul A. Lombardo
2 Protecting the Public's Health in an Era of Bioterrorism: The Model State Emergency Health Powers Act	17
James G. Hodge, Jr. and Lawrence O. Gostin
3 Terrorism and Human Rights	33
George J. Annas
4 Rights and Dangers: Bioterrorism and the Ideologies of Public Health	51
Ronald Bayer and James Colgrove
II Resource Allocation	75
5 Triage in Response to a Bioterrorist Attack	77
James F. Childress
6 Overwhelming Casualties: Medical Ethics in a Time of Terror	95
Kenneth Kipnis

III Health Care Workers	109
7 Emergency Health Professionals and the Ethics of Crisis	111
Lisa A. Eckenwiler
8 Emergency Medicine, Terrorism, and Universal Access to Health Care: A Potent Mixture for Erstwhile Knights-Errant	133
Griffin Trotter
IV Industry Obligations	147
9 The Rightful Goals of a Corporation and the Obligations of the Pharmaceutical Industry in a World with Bioterrorism	149
Evan G. DeRenzo
10 After the Terror: Health Care Organizations, the Health Care System, and the Future of Organization Ethics	167
Ann E. Mills and Patricia H. Werhane
V Research and Genetics	183
11 Research Involving Victims of Terror—Ethical Considerations	185
Alan R. Fleischman and Emily B. Wood
12 Genetics and Bioterrorism: Challenges for Science, Society, and Bioethics	199
Eric M. Meslin
Index	219