

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
Dedication	ix
Preface	x
Foreword	xii
 1. THE IMPORTANCE OF CHILD CARE LAW AND POLICY	 1
The study of child care policy	3
Introduction to the four value perspectives in Chapters 2–5	9
Notes and references	11
 2. LAISSEZ-FAIRE AND PATRIARCHY	 13
Introduction	13
(i) The main elements of the perspective	13
(ii) Some authors associated with the perspective	16
(iii) Rationale and underlying values	25
(iv) Criticisms of laissez-faire	30
(a) Empirical support	30
(b) Problems with the implications for policy	32
(c) Problems of rationale and underlying values	38
(v) The perspective in practice	41
Laissez-faire in nineteenth century English child care law	41
Laissez-faire in the 1970s and 1980s in United States child welfare law, policy and practice	46
Note on the decline and defence of patriarchy	50
Some references relevant to this perspective	52
Notes and references	53

3. STATE PATERNALISM AND CHILD PROTECTION	59
Introduction	59
(i) The main elements of the perspective	59
(ii) Some authors associated with the perspective	62
(iii) Rationale and underlying values	70
(iv) Criticisms of state paternalism and child protection	75
(a) Empirical support	75
(b) Problems with the implications for policy	77
(c) Problems of rationale and underlying values	82
(v) The perspective in practice	85
Paternalism and protection in English child care law and policy in the early twentieth century	85
Paternalism and protection in English child care law and policy in the 1970s	91
Some references relevant to this perspective	97
Notes and references	99
4. THE MODERN DEFENCE OF THE BIRTH FAMILY AND PARENTS' RIGHTS	104
Introduction	104
(i) The main elements of the perspective	104
(ii) Some authors associated with the perspective	107
(iii) Rationale and underlying values	117
(iv) Criticisms of the modern defence of the birth family and parents' rights	122
(a) Empirical support	122
(b) Problems with the implications for policy	126
(c) Problems of rationale and underlying values	131
(v) The perspective in practice	134
The defence of the birth family in English child care law and policy in the 1950s and 1960s	134
The defence of the birth family in child welfare policy in Australia in the 1970s	143
Some references relevant to this perspective	148
Notes and references	150
5. CHILDREN'S RIGHTS AND CHILD LIBERATION	155
Introduction	155
(i) The main elements of the perspective	155
(ii) Some authors associated with the perspective	159
(iii) Rationale and underlying values	169

(iv) Criticisms of the children's rights and child liberation perspective	175
(a) Empirical support	175
(b) Problems with the implications for policy	180
(c) Problems of rationale and underlying values	185
(v) The perspective in practice	188
Children's rights in Norway in the 1980s	189
Other signs of the perspective in practice	191
Some references relevant to this perspective	196
Notes and references	196
 6. CONVERGENCES AND DIVERGENCES
Points of convergence between the four perspectives	201
(a) The focus on children	201
(b) The state and the blood tie	203
(c) Areas of convergence in the first three perspectives	204
Points of divergence between the four perspectives	205
(a) The understanding of child welfare	206
(b) The view of the family	207
(c) The origins of child care problems	209
(d) The role of the state	210
(e) The concept of rights	212
(f) The view of society and social problems	213
A final comment	215
Notes and references	215
 7. LAW, POLICY AND PRACTICE: AN UNEASY SYNTHESIS	217
Factors influencing law, policy and practice	218
(a) Scandals and enquiries and the response	218
(b) Interest groups and their thinking	220
(c) Reviews of legislation and policy	221
(d) Wider policies and changes	222
English child care policy in the 1980s – the uneasy synthesis	224
(a) Laissez-faire	224
(b) Child protection and state paternalism	225
(c) The defence of the birth family	227
(d) Children's rights and child liberation	230
Conclusion: conflict and balance	230
Notes and references	231
 Bibliography	235
Index	243