

CONTENTS

List of tables and figure	page xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Abbreviations	xv
 Introduction: On dependence and distribution	 I
 Part I: Programs and precedents	 23
1 The family in question: State and family in prewar thought and politics	25
Emile Zola, H. G. Wells, and the crisis of the family	26
Dependence and the state in Britain	32
Dénatalité and the state in France	59
Conclusion	77
2 The impact of the Great War	79
The wartime social contract	81
Gender, dependence, and the labor market	89
Gender, dependence, and welfare	107
Policy legacies and political agendas	120
Conclusion	130
 Part II: Reworking the family wage in the twenties	 135
3 Family policy as women's emancipation? The failed campaign for endowment of motherhood in Britain	138

	"Separate but equal": The vision of maternalist feminism	140
	Fantasy as social science: Seebohm Rowntree imagines the family	152
	Labour women and the "men's movement"	160
	Civil servants and the contracting state	169
	Conclusion	175
4	Family policy as "socialism in our time"? The failed campaign for children's allowances in Britain	178
	The Disinherited Family and the organization of the Family Endowment Society	179
	Economic arguments for family allowances: Liberal and socialist views	185
	From inquiry to stalemate: The Joint Committee on the Living Wage	197
	Family policy and the trade unions	208
	Conclusion	219
5	Business strategies and the family: The development of family allowances in France, 1920–1936	224
	Family allowances and ideologies of social renewal	227
	Family allowances as paternalistic control: The Consortium Textile de Roubaix-Tourcoing	236
	Family allowances in the service of economic reconstruction: The Caisse de Compensation de la Région Parisienne	261
	Conclusion	285
	Part III: The politics of state intervention in the thirties	289
6	Engendering the British welfare state	292
	Unemployment policies and the enforcement of dependence	294
	A new case for children's allowances	316
	The place of family policy in the Beveridgian welfare state	336
	Conclusion	354
7	Distributive justice and the family: Toward a parental welfare state	357
	"Il faut faire naître": The creation of a pronatalist consensus	359

Contents	ix
The progress of state intervention	372
What manner of family? Gender and dependence in the parental welfare state	392
Conclusion	410
Conclusion	413
Bibliography	427
Index	465

TABLES AND FIGURE

Tables

1.1	Women workers as a percentage of the “economically active” population, by sector	page 37
1.2	Distribution of “economically active” men and women, Britain	37
1.3	Labor force participation rates by age and sex, 1911	38
1.4	Distribution of “economically active” men and women, France	71
2.1	Women as a percentage of the total work force, 1914 and 1918	90
2.2	Distribution and density of women workers by sector, 1921	124
2.3	Labor force participation rates by age and sex, 1921	125
5.1	National growth of the caisses de compensation	232
5.2	Growth of the Consortium Textile de Roubaix- Tourcoing	243
5.3	Monthly rates for Consortium family allowances	244
5.4	Weekly Consortium family allowance for families meeting all conditions for receipt, 1923 and 1930	245
5.5	Family allowances actually received by Consortium workers, 1923–38	247
5.6	Consortium wages and cost-of-living indices	260
5.7	Growth of the Caisse de Compensation de la Région Parisienne	268
5.8	Monthly rates for CCRP family allowances	270
5.9	CCRP family allowances as a percentage of a full- time monthly wage at the average hourly rate for Metals Group firms	272

5.10	Index of real wages in Metals Group firms and national production indices	284
6.1	Operation of the anomalies regulations, 3 October 1931 to 29 April 1933	303
6.2	Percentage of insured workers drawing unemployment benefit	305
6.3	Normal wages of workers receiving benefits from the Unemployment Assistance Board, 1937	315
6.4	Family needs compared with unemployment benefits, 1935	324
6.5	Children's allowances in social programs, 1942	328
6.6	Payment of family allowances to the mother: public support and opposition by sex and class, 1943	347
7.1	Expansion of the caisses , 1934–9	379
7.2	Family allowances as a percentage of the base wage, 1938 and 1939 laws	388
7.3	Family allowances as a percentage of the base wage, Vichy laws of 15 February and 29 March 1941	389
7.4	Development of family allowances, 1938–58	391
7.5	Breakdown of social benefits, 1938–58	392
7.6	Income differentials between unmarried workers and workers with families at the base wage level, 1939 and 1949	392
C.1	Breakdown of social insurance and family allowance benefits, 1960–85	414
C.2	Spending on social security schemes as a percentage of GDP, selected European countries, 1960–85	416
C.3	Breakdown of contributions for social insurance and family allowances, 1960–85	417

Figure

5.1	Ties between employers' organizations and the family allowance funds	266
-----	--	-----