

Contents

Preface vii

Acknowledgments x

1 Overview 1

The Alternatives 3

The Pressure to Migrate 5

The Response 7

Conclusions 10

2 Migration: The Pressure to Move 11

The Setting 11

Earlier Migrations 14

What Determines Migration? 20

Prospects for Desired Migration 23

Time Pattern of Desired Migration 25

Can Immigration Be Controlled? 28

3 Migration: The Likely Effects 33

Long-Run Effects 33

Externality Issues 37

Short-Run Absorption 42

Effects in the United States	44
The Return of the French Algerians	46
Postwar Germany	47
Can the West Cope?	49
4 Free Trade with the West	51
Prospects for Growth in Trade	52
Trade as a Substitute for Migration	53
Efficiency Differences and Factor Mobility	56
Dynamic and Macroeconomic Gains from Trade	58
Prospects	60
5 Aid and Capital Flows	63
Necessary Conditions for Investment	63
External Finance as a Lever for Reform	66
Forms and Conditions of Aid	68
Who Should Pay and How?	69
Consolidating the Debt	70
Appendix 1 Economics of Migration: Further Evidence	73
Appendix 2 Can Emigration Hurt the Home Country?	77
Notes	83
References	89