

---

CONTENTS

---

Foreword	xvii
 1 Introduction: Inner-City Isolation and Opportunity
George E. Peterson and Adele V. Harrell	1
Physical Isolation	4
Drugs, Crime, and Underclass Behaviors	7
Social Isolation	10
Organization of this Volume	12
Policy Orientation	19
 2 Black Philadelphia Then and Now: The “Underclass” of the Late 20th Century Compared with Poorer African-Americans of the Late 19th Century
Roger Lane	27
Progress of the Black Middle Class Following the Civil War	28
Working Class—Not Underclass	33
Exclusion of the Majority from the Industrial Age	35
Origins of the Modern Underclass	41
 3 The Severely Distressed in Economically Transforming Cities John D. Kasarda	45
The Urban Underclass Concept and Measures	46
The Severely Distressed	49
Size and Racial/Ethnic Composition of Households and Persons	51
Aggregate Versus Individual Indicators of Distress	56
Growth Dynamics	58
Economics in Transition	65
Documenting Skill and Spatial Mismatches	74
Policy Commentary	82
Appendix 3.A	87
Appendix 3.B	91

4 Drug Selling and Licit Income in Distressed Neighborhoods: The Economic Lives of Street-Level Drug Users and Dealers	Jeffrey Fagan	99
Erosion of Social and Economic Controls on Drug Selling		101
Objectives and Methods		104
Sample Design		104
Sample Recruitment		106
Interview Procedures		107
Variables		108
The Study Neighborhoods		109
Results		115
Social Organization of Drug Selling and Violence		115
Labor Force Participation and Income from Drug Selling		119
Impact of Drug Selling on Legal Income and Work Participation		121
Interpreting Income Changes for Drug Sellers and Drug Users		125
Effects of Drug Involvement on Labor Force Participation		128
Conclusions		131
The Paradox of Neighborhood Distress		131
Higher Reservation Wages and Skills Mismatch		132
Disruption of Traditional Job Networks		134
Institutionalization of the Drug Economy		135
Expansion of the Prostitution Industry		135
Importance of Economic Self-Sufficiency		136
Epilogue: The Changing Social Context of Drug Use		137
Appendix 4.A		139
Appendix 4.B		140
Appendix 4.C		141
5 The Story of John Turner	Elijah Anderson	147
6 Impact of Drugs on Family Life and Kin Networks in the Inner-City African-American Single-Parent Household	Eloise Dunlap	181
Methodology		182
African-American Family Structure		182
Family Stability: Instrumental and Expressive Functions		184
Drugs and Their Impact on Black Family Life		185

Case Studies	187
Unstable Households—Maureen, Priscilla, Fay	187
Less-Unstable Households—Vivian, Sarah, Island	193
Conclusion	203
7 Drugs and Patterns of Opportunity in the Inner City: The Case of Middle-Aged, Middle-Income Cocaine
Smokers Ansley Hamid	209
Economic and Social Decline in the Inner City	210
Pivotal Role of Middle-Aged Workers	211
Research Method	212
How Smokable Cocaine Eroded Middle-Age and Middle-Income Status	212
Rasta Musa's Freebase Parlor: The Pitfall of "Fast" Money	214
Middle-Aged, Mid-Level Marijuana Distributor	215
Middling Prosperity	215
Middle-Age Political and Ideological Development and Commitment to Community	216
Middle-Age Spirituality	217
How Interdiction Destroyed the Marijuana Economy and Promoted Cocaine	217
Overcoming Misgivings about Cocaine	218
Learning to Smoke Cocaine from Colombians in Trinidad	218
Development of New York City Cocaine Market Freebase Parlors	219
How Cocaine Smoking Unraveled Fortune, Morality, and Politics	219
Escape to Ethiopia	220
Bruno: Crack Satisfied a Mid-life Quest for Excitement	220
Can't Explain his Cravings for Crack	221
Lust for Extramarital Sex	221
Job Loss	222
William: Untying Queen Victoria's Apronstrings and "Learning the Street"	222
Victorian Upbringing	223
Testing the Middle-Class Limit: Homosexuality	223
Testing the Middle-Class Limit: "The Street"	223
Testing the Middle-Class Limit: Drugs	223
Testing the Middle-Class Limit: Crack	224

Maintaining Class Distinctions in Crack Use	224
Some Worker Characteristics of Middle-Aged, Middle-Income Cocaine Smokers	224
Living with Crack after Losing Job	225
Reggie: Crack Mends Broken Heart	225
Perfect Family Man	226
Suffering for the Past	226
Wife's Infidelity	226
Crack Provides Solace and Sex	226
Cochise: All That Money Confused Me	227
A Native American Raised among African- Americans	227
Sudden Money and Fame	228
Family Background and Alcoholism	228
Embarrassment of Riches	228
Sam: Crack Made Me Steal on the Job and Makes Me Violent	229
Solid Lower-Middle-Class Background	229
Dropping Out of School and Hanging Out	229
Introduction to Crack	230
Stealing on the Job	230
Diversifying Crime	230
Crack Distribution	230
Need for Crack Triggers Violence	231
Post-Crack Local Labor Market	231
Female Worker-Users: Shashi's "Mission"	233
Getting the Urge to Use Crack	234
Finding "Victims" and Crack: First Day	234
Second Day	234
Third Day	234
Fourth Day	235
Young Non-using Distributors	236
"Hanging Out"	236
Selling Crack	236
Other Crime	237
Guns	237
Anticipating a Short Life	237
Conclusion	238

8 Mobility Into and Out of Poor Urban Neighborhoods

Edward Gramlich, Deborah Laren, and Naomi Sealand	241
Poor People and Places	242

Mobility: Transition Matrices	245
Implications of Transition Matrices	247
Income Gains	251
Implications	253
9 Social Isolation and the Underclass Roberto Fernandez and David Harris	257
Refining the Concept of Social Isolation	260
Data and Measures	265
Analysis	269
Class Differences in Social Isolation	270
Neighborhood Effects on Social Isolation	275
Interaction Effects on Isolation	279
Discussion	286
About the Editors	295
About the Contributors	297

Tables

3.1 Severely Distressed Households/Persons/Children Among 95 most Populated Central Cities, 1980	52
3.2 Comparison of Households and Population According to Ricketts-Sawhill and PUMS Measures of Underclass, 1980	57
3.3 Net Change of the Severely Distressed Population Between 1970 and 1980	59
3.4 Number and Distribution of Disadvantaged Population, 1970 and 1980, by Subarea	60
3.5 Percentage of Population with Distress Attributes, 1970 to 1980, by Race/Ethnicity	62
3.6 Change in Population with both Poor Work History and in Poverty, 1970 to 1980, by Race	64
3.7 Change in Place-of-Work Earnings and Percentage Change, 1970-87	66
3.8 Change in Place-of-Work Earnings by Industry, 1970-87	68
3.9 Percentage Change in Place-of-Work Earnings by Industry, 1970-87	69

3.10	Distribution of Place-of-Work Earnings by Industry: 1970, 1980, and 1987	70
3.11	Change in Employment by Industry for Selected Metropolitan Areas, 1967-87	72
3.12	City and Subarea Population Characteristics, 1980	75
3.13	Educational Distribution of City Job Change, Jobholders, and Out-of-School Black Male Residents, Aged 16-64, 1980	77
3.14	Percentage of Not Working, Out-of-School Males, Aged 16-64, by Race, Education, Region, and Central City-Suburban Residence for Selected Metropolitan Areas: 1968-70 to 1986-88	78
3.15	Mean Commuting Times to Work (One-Way, in Minutes) of Employed Persons by Residence and Workplace, Means of Transport, and Race, 1980	83
3.A	Distribution of Severely Distressed Population by Race, 1980	87
3.B	Comparison of Population Counts Using Ricketts-Sawhill and PUMS Measures of Underclass Population	91
4.1	Percentage Distribution of Respondents' Legal Status and Self-Reported Primary Drug Involvement by New York City Neighborhood	105
4.2	New York City Neighborhood Social, Structural, and Economic Profiles, 1970-80	112
4.3	Concentration of Poverty Within New York City Census Tracts, 1970-80	114
4.4	Natality and Mortality Indices by New York City Neighborhood, 1988	114
4.5	Social Organization of Drug Selling by New York City Neighborhood	116
4.6	Annual Offending Rates for Nondrug Crimes by Selling Status, 1986-88	118
4.7	Income Distribution by Drug-Selling Participation and Employment Status by New York City Neighborhood	120
4.8	Monthly Income Distribution Before and After Drug Involvement by Selling Status and New York City Neighborhood	122
4.9	Monthly Expense Distribution Before and After Drug Involvement by Selling Status and New York City Neighborhood	123

4.10	Ordinary Least Squares Regression on Total Income After Initiation into Principal Drug	127
4.11	Tobit Model for Labor Force Participation	130
4.A	Sample Characteristics by New York City Neighborhood	139
4.B	Annual Drug Use Rates by Selling and Work Status, 1986-88, by New York City Neighborhood	140
4.C	Monthly Expenses for the Year Preceding and Following Initiation into Crack, by New York City Neighborhood	141
8.1	Distribution of the Population, 1979-84	244
8.2	Transition Matrices for the Persistently Poor in Families with Children, 1979-84	246
8.3	1970-84 Actual and Predicted Composition in Poor Metropolitan Census Tracts	248
8.4	1979-84 and Equilibrium Population Composition for Poor Metropolitan Census Tracts	250
8.5	Income Gains for Those Living and Staying in Poor and Nonpoor Metropolitan Census Tracts, 1979-84	253
9.1	Dimensions of Social Isolation	262
9.2	Definitions of Class	267
9.3	Percentage Distribution of Class by Race, Area, and Gender	268
9.4	Percentage Regularly Attending Meetings of Various Local Organizations by Class and Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	270
9.5	Average Numbers of Relations, Distinct Individuals, and Overlaps Across Minor Support, Major Support, and Friendship Networks by Class and Gender for Non- Hispanic Blacks	271
9.6	Average Percentage with Partner, Percentage with No Friends, and Percentage with Kin in Support Network by Class and Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	272
9.7	Average Characteristics of Friends by Class and Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	274
9.8	Neighborhood and Class Effects on Regular Meeting Attendance by Gender for Non- Hispanic Blacks	276
9.9	Neighborhood and Class Effects on Structure of

Personal Networks by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	277
9.10 Neighborhood and Class Effects on Composition of Personal Networks by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	278
9.11 Neighborhood and Class Effects on Characteristics of Friends by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	279
9.12 Neighborhood, Class, and Interaction Effects on Attending Meetings for Various Organizations by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	281
9.13 Neighborhood, Class, and Interaction Effects on Structure of Personal Networks by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	283
9.14 Neighborhood, Class, and Interaction Effects on Composition of Person Networks by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	284
9.15 Neighborhood, Class, and Interaction Effects on Characteristics of Friends by Gender for Non-Hispanic Blacks	287
9.16 Summary of Empirical Results for Various Dimensions of Social Isolation of Non-Hispanic Blacks by Gender	288