
Contents

CHAPTER 1

WOMEN AND THE ENVIRONMENT: A PERSPECTIVE ON RESEARCH, DESIGN, AND POLICY 1

ARZA CHURCHMAN AND IRWIN ALTMAN

Introduction	1
Background	2
Contexts of Women's Lives	4
The Distinction between Private and Public Environments	6
Implementing Social Change	9
Social/Physical Units of Change	9
The Content of Change	10
The Process of Change	12
A Future Agenda	12
References	14

CHAPTER 2

EVERYDAY LIFE IN CONTEXTUAL PERSPECTIVE 17

WILLIAM MICHELSON

Conceptualizing the Relationships of People and Everyday Contexts	18
Contexts	18

Everyday Life	20
Everyday Life in Contextual Perspective	22
The Salience of Everyday Behavior and Its Contextual Perspective for the Study of Women and Environments ...	25
An Expanded View of Environments Pertinent to Women	28
Housing	29
Land Use and Temporal Availability	33
Transportation	34
Safety: Expanded Contexts	35
Future Research on Policy Issues	36
Extended Hours	36
Exposure to Dangerous Contexts	37
Workplace Flexibility	38
The Substance of Planning and Planning Research	38
References	40

CHAPTER 3

GIRLS AND BOYS AND THE PHYSICAL ENVIRONMENT: AN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE 43

RACHEL SEBBA

Introduction	43
Educational Environments of Boys and Girls:
A Chronological Review	45
The Environmental Model of the Child as a Mirror of His/Her Education	50
The Environment as an Indicator of Child Development	50
The Environmental Model of the Child	51
The Main Variables in the Environmental Model of Boys and Girls	52
The Boys' Environmental Model	52
The Girls' Environmental Model	59
The Environmental Model of Children Today	63
Conclusion	66
Directions for Future Research	67
References	70

CHAPTER 4

SOCIOSPATIAL RELATIONS OF CHANGE:
RURAL MEXICAN WOMEN IN URBAN CALIFORNIA 73

ELLEN-J. PADER

From Mexico to Southern California	76
Theoretical Considerations	77
Life in La Chaneja, Mexico	80
Women's Daily Domestic Routine	82
Child Care	87
Sociospatial Discontinuity in the United States	88
New Homes, New Routines, New Conceptual Frameworks	91
Women's Role in Change	98
Directions for Future Research and Policy	99
References	101

CHAPTER 5

ENVIRONMENT AND THE AGING WOMAN:
DOMAINS OF CHOICE 105

SANDRA C. HOWELL

Setting the Stage	105
Domains of Choice	109
The Reconstruction of Self-in-Place	109
The Primacy of Nature	112
Voices of Need and Limited Choice	114
Organizing the Environment: The Frail, Oldest Women	117
Cohort Effects and Migratory History	120
Keeping Up with Aging Friends and Relatives	121
Cultures and Aging Women: Grandmother as	122
Household Head	124
Women and Environmental Imaging	125
Future Directions for Research	125
Future Environments and Future Women	126
Environments Outside the Home	126
Conclusion	129
References	129

CHAPTER 6

WORKING AT HOME: FRAMEWORKS OF MEANING 133

KATHLEEN CHRISTENSEN

Introduction	133
Women Working at Home	134
Frameworks of Meaning	136
About This Chapter	140
Case Studies	140
Jennifer Young	140
Susan Carlton	146
Lisa Jacobi	151
Directions for Future Research, Environmental Design, and Policy	157
Ignored Groups	158
Different Employment Conditions	159
Design	160
Theoretical Issues	161
Policy	162
References	163

CHAPTER 7

THE POLITICS OF SPACE APPROPRIATION:
A CASE STUDY OF WOMEN'S STRUGGLES
FOR HOMEPLACE IN CHICAGO PUBLIC HOUSING 167

ROBERTA M. FELDMAN AND SUSAN STALL

Introduction	167
A Brief History of Chicago Public Housing	169
The Politics of Space Appropriation	172
The Appropriation of Homeplace	173
A Case Study of the Invisible Struggles for Homeplace	175
Appropriating the Field House: Modest Struggles	177
Wentworth Gardens Laundromat: Building Community	179
The Struggles to Save Homeplace	182

Theoretical Implications	186
Appropriation of Homeplace as Empowerment	187
Appropriation of Homeplace as Resistance	188
The Prospects for Wentworth Women	190
Directions for Future Research	191
References	195

CHAPTER 8

IN SEARCH OF SUPPORTIVE STRUCTURES FOR EVERYDAY LIFE	201
---	-----

LIISA HORELLI AND KIRSTI VEPSÄ

Environmental Awakenings of Scandinavian Women	201
The New Everyday Life: Theoretical Perspectives and Practical Experiments	204
The New Everyday Life as a Vision	204
The New Everyday Life as a Theoretical Approach	204
The New Everyday Life as Action and Change	209
The New Everyday Life Approach in the Finnish Context	217
A "Living Room" for Local Inhabitants	217
Planning as a Struggle between Different Rationalities	219
Implications for Future Policy, Planning, and Research	221
References	224

CHAPTER 9

WOMEN, WORK, AND METROPOLITAN ENVIRONMENTS	227
---	-----

SUSAN HANSON, GERALDINE PRATT,
DOREEN MATTINGLY, AND MELISSA GILBERT

The Nature of Women's Employment	228
The Role of the Local Environment in Women's Employment	230
A Case Study: Two Worcester Suburban Areas	234
Data	235
Context: Westboro and the Blackstone Valley	235

The Social Context	241
Women's Economic Roles within the Household	243
Household Strategies	246
Future Directions for Research and Policy	249
References	251

CHAPTER 10

A FEMINIST ANALYSIS OF GENDER AND RESIDENTIAL ZONING IN THE UNITED STATES 255

MARSHA RITZDORF

Introduction	255
Zoning and Family Values	258
Family Definitions in American Zoning Ordinances	261
Barriers to Housing Innovation in Single-Family Neighborhoods	264
Access to Child Care	266
Home-Based Work	270
A Feminist Perspective on Zoning	272
Future Directions of Planning and Policy	275
References	278

CHAPTER 11

PARTIAL UTOPIAN VISIONS: FEMINIST REFLECTIONS ON THE FIELD 281

LYNDA H. SCHNEEKLOTH

Introduction	281
A Utopian Project	284
The Place of Our Practice	287
The University as a Reproductive System	288
Science as a Social Practice	290
Expert Discourses as Insertion	294

Owning Our Utopian Work 297

 Mindful Practices 298

 Liberating Projects 302

References 304

INDEX 307