

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
To the Reader	xi
Foreword	xiii

PART I CAPITALISM AND ECONOMIC CHANGE

1. The Theory of Economic Change	3
1.1 Capitalism as society undergoing change	3
1.2 Production and social relationships	3
1.3 Individuals and institutions	4
1.4 The nature of institutions	6
1.5 Individual action	7
1.6 Reason, instinct and the 'collective psyche'	9
2. The Initiative to Change	15
2.1 The entrepreneur and his 'capitalist function'	15
2.2 Entrepreneur and profit	16
2.3 The entrepreneur as an 'endogenous' element of capitalism	19
2.4 Entrepreneur and economic rationality	20
3. A 'Credit Economy'	27
3.1 Credit, money and the capitalist process	27
3.2 The capitalist method for achieving innovation	29
3.3 Production, saving and credit	30
3.4 Credit requirement of new enterprises	32
3.5 Credit supply	33
3.6 Banks and monetary authorities	36
3.7 Interest as a monetary phenomenon	38
4. The Process of 'Creative Destruction'	45
4.1 Introduction	45
4.2 The assumption of an individual entrepreneur	46
4.3 The phenomenon of entrepreneurs in swarms	47
4.4 Entrepreneurs in swarms and institutional intervention	50
4.5 Schumpeter and the cycle theories	51
4.6 Innovation cycle and credit policy: Schumpeter and Keynes	52

PART II MONEY AND THE TAX STATE

5. Social Product and Unit of Account	63
5.1 A market economy as a money economy	63
5.2 The acceptance of money	64
5.3 The value of money	65
5.4 The meaning of 'value of money'	68
5.5 A critical discussion of the quantity theory of money	70
5.6 Beyond the limits of the quantity theory of money	73
5.7 The value of money, social product and income distribution	74
6. The Tax State and Financial Policy	82
6.1 Economic theory and economic policy	82
6.2 The tax state	83
6.3 The scope and limits of fiscal policy	85
6.4 A programme of financial reform for Austria	87
6.5 The question of Austria's viability	91
6.6 The question of the international gold standard	93

PART III INCOMES AND SOCIETY

7. Capitalist Incomes	105
7.1 The organization of production and income distribution	105
7.2 The marginal utility theory of value and income distribution	107
7.3 Labour supply in a capitalist economy	108
7.4 Production and surplus value	109
7.5 Perfect competition and entrepreneurial competition	111
7.6 Interest as a curtailment of surplus value	113
7.7 Capitalism and capital: Schumpeter and Marx	114
8. The Socialization of Production	120
8.1 From entrepreneurial competition to 'organized' capitalism	120
8.2 A feasible form of socialism	123
8.3 Socialization, revolution and democracy	127

APPENDICES

A. Vision and Theory
A.1 The concept of vision	137
A.2 Schumpeter in relation to other scholars	137
	138
B. The Origin of Institutions and the Nature of the State	140
B.1 Schumpeter and the Austrian problem of the origin of institutions	140
B.2 Schumpeter and the holistic concept of society	141

B.3 Individual needs, needs of the community as such and the origin of the state: Menger and Schumpeter	141
C. The Entrepreneur	144
C.1 The innovating entrepreneur and the traditional manufacturer	144
C.2 Some alternative theories of entrepreneurship	147
C.3 Capitalism, bourgeoisie and artistic expression	149
D. Interest and Interest Rate	151
D.1 Interest throughout the economic process	151
D.2 Interest, circular flow and entrepreneurial stasis in capitalism	151
E. Economic Policy in Postwar Austria	154
E.1 Political economy and economic policy	154
E.2 The postwar debate on a capital levy	155
E.3 The Austrian dilemma after World War I	157
F. Power and Economics	159
F.1 The discussion on 'power or laws of economics'	159
F.2 Possible collusion between banks, industry and politics	160
G. Schumpeter and the Austrian Concepts of Capital	162
H. Capitalism and 'Rationalization of Life': Lederer's Influence on Schumpeter	164
References	167
Name Index	185
Subject Index	189