

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION by Kenneth B. Clark	ix
PROLOGUE: A Time to Begin	xi

PART I THE BAD RESULTS OF GOOD INTENTIONS: A NINETY-YEAR EXPERIMENT THAT FAILED

1. Juveniles and the Crime Problem	3
2. The Myth of the Juvenile Court	14
3. The Costly Myth of Rehabilitation	35
4. Even Prevention Has Failed	52
5. The Public School as Villain	61
6. Punishing the Victim: Status Offenders in the Juvenile Court	81
7. Cultural Roots of Delinquency	95

PART II THE ULTIMATE HOPE: PREVENTION RECONSIDERED

8. Discarding False Assumptions	115
9. Delinquency and the Poverty Cycle	120
10. Escape from the Symbiotic Cycles of Delinquency, Illiteracy, and Welfare Dependency	134
11. Intervention at an Early Age: The Child Development Services System	156
12. Restructuring Schools to Meet Today's Challenges	173
13. Alternative Schools That Fight Illiteracy and Delinquency	195

14. Shelter for Throwaways and Pushouts	211
15. Jobs Versus Delinquency	221
16. Juveniles and Drugs—a War That Was Lost	233
17. Toward a Winnable War on Drugs	253

PART III SOCIETY'S LAST CHANCE:
 PUTTING JUSTICE INTO THE JUVENILE JUSTICE SYSTEM

18. The Family Court: Compulsory Prevention	273
19. Punishment as a Rehabilitative Tool	288
20. The Youthful Offender Court	299
21. Punishing the Juvenile Offender	311
22. State Offices of Children and Youth	324

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	331
NOTES	333
INDEX	339