

Contents

Reference Scheme and Abbreviations	xv
General Introduction: The Emergence of Kant's Transcendental Psychologism	1
Chapter 1: Kant and British Empiricism	3
A. Sensibilism	3
B. Striking the Right Historiographical Balance	6
C. Psychologism	9
D. Overview	11
Chapter 2: Kant's Extension of Humean Skepticism to Mathematics	18
A. Kant's Humeanism	18
B. Hume and Kant: Birds of the Same Psychologistic Feather	21
C. Kant's Principal Debt to Hume: Psychologism as the Foundation for a New Theory of the Understanding	29
D. Mathematical Cognition: Imagination or Intellect?	33
E. Two Objections	39
Chapter 3: A Kantian Way Out of Hume's Quandary	49
A. Hume's Account of Personal Identity	49
B. Hume's Quandary Concerning Personal Identity	53
C. Why Hume Could Not Psychologize Apprehension	55
D. The Elements of Kant's Psychologization of Time	59
E. Prediscursive Synthetic Unity of Apperception	73
F. A Kantian Exit From Hume's Quandary Concerning Personal Identity	83
Chapter 4: Hostage to Stereotypes	86
A. Geometry	87
B. Mathematical Logic	91
C. Language	97
D. Cognitive Science	110
Part I: Locke's New Model Philosophy: From the Metaphysics of Substance to the Psychology of Human Understanding	117
Chapter 5: Locke's Theory of Ideas	119
A. The Thematic Unity of Locke's Essay	119
B. Ideas, the Immediate Objects of Consciousness: Locke's Sensibilism	122
C. Complex Ideas: Locke's Empiricism	132
D. Further Considerations Regarding Locke's Theory of Ideas	139

Chapter 6: Perception and the Synthesis of Experience	150
A. The Human Perceptual Mechanism	150
B. The Molyneux Problem	155
C. Locke's Solution to the Molyneux Problem	157
D. A New Conception of "Immediate" Experience	167
Chapter 7: Objective Understanding	174
A. The Elements of Locke's Conception of Objective Understanding	174
B. The Object and the I: The Presupposition of an Empirical Subject	177
C. Substances: Our Understanding of Their Existence and Nature	178
D. Locke's Materialism	184
Chapter 8: Understanding in Language	195
A. The Signification of Words	196
B. Generality Without Abstraction: The Philosophical Uses of Language	203
C. Locke's Critique of Essentialism	209
D. Propositions, Mental and Verbal	216
Chapter 9: Knowledge and Skepticism	224
A. Eternal Truths	224
B. Locke's Proof of an External World	231
C. Setting Normative Epistemology to One Side: The Vitality of Early Modern Skepticism	236
Part II: Berkeley's Modest Proposal: A World of Ideas	243
Chapter 10: Berkeley's Separability Principle: Semantics, Psychology, and Ontology	247
A. Berkeley's False Start	248
B. The Separability Principle: The Cardinal Tenet of Berkeley's Theory of Ideas	257
C. Beyond Language: Ideas Divested of Words	260
D. Towards a New Philosophical Ontology	266
E. The Heterogeneity of Language and Thought	269
Chapter 11: Berkeleyan Idealism: The Inseparability of Existence, Sensation, and Perception	272
A. The Esse of Sensible Things is Percipi	274
B. Existing Unperceived	278
C. Berkeley's Psychologistic Explication of Existence	284
D. Interpreting Berkeleyan Idealism	288
Chapter 12: Objective Understanding Dismantled	293
A. The Likeness Principle	293
B. All Sensible Qualities Are Ideas of Secondary Qualities	297
C. Material Substance and Causation	303
Chapter 13: Notions of Mind	310
A. Berkeley's Psychologistic Explications of Causality and Substance	310

B. The Nonmanifold I	315
C. The Mind as Substrate of Successive Perceptions	318
D. The Substantiality of Spirit	322
Chapter 14: Objective Understanding Transformed	325
A. The Synthesis of Visual Spatiality	326
B. Touched But Not Seen: Berkeley's Theory of Spatial Representation	331
C. The Tactual Basis of Spatial Imagination	339
D. The Distinctive Phenomenology of Vision	344
E. The Distinctive Formal Multiplicity of Vision	348
F. Sense-Divide Transcending Objects	358
G. Objects as Chapters in the Volume of Nature	363
Part III: Hume's Affective Affinities: Associative Attraction by Reflexive Projection	367
Chapter 15: The Pre-Humean Problem of Origins	377
A. The Rationalist Problem of Origins	379
B. Locke's Critique of Rationalist Intellectualism	387
C. The Limits of Lockean Sensibilism	395
D. Berkeley's Fortified Sensibilism	397
E. Towards Hume's Psychologism	398
Chapter 16: From Origins of Ideas to Ideas of Origins: Causality Psychologized	401
A. Preassociative Objects: Their Order and Arrangement	404
B. The Copy Principle: Hume's Solution to the Problem of Origins	412
C. Making Sense of the Copy Principle: Is Circularity Avoidable?	417
D. Making Sense of the Copy Principle: Is Its Circularity Vicious?	423
E. Hume's Theory of Ideas and the General Causal Maxim	428
F. The Copy Principle as a Product of Association	438
G. The Theory of Origins in Light of the Associative Nature of the Copy Principle	444
Chapter 17: The Nature of Relation	456
A. Fictions of Relation	456
B. facility, the Essence of Relation	464
C. Vivacity Follows Facility	478
D. Projective Illusion	487
E. Associative Affects in the Science of Human Nature	496
Chapter 18: The Role of Custom in Associative Understanding	499
A. At the Threshold of Synthetic A Priori Necessary Truth	500
B. Customary Association by Resemblance: General Ideas	504
C. Customary Association by Contiguity: Ideas of Space and Time	515
D. Customary Association by Cause and Effect: A World in Mind	523
Chapter 19: Reasoning Reasonably	536
A. Empirical Reason	538

B. The Structure of Empirical Rationality	546
C. The Role of Customary Association in Regulating Empirical Rationality	552
D. First Species Probable Reasoning: The Natural Basis of Belief in the Uniformity Principle and the General Causal Maxim	556
E. Reckoning With Contrariety	565
Chapter 20: The Supreme Principle of Hume's Theory of Understanding	572
A. Skepticism With Regard to Reason: How Knowledge Degenerates Into Probability	573
B. Skepticism With Regard to Reason: How Probability Reduces to Nothing	576
C. Why Skepticism With Regard to Reason Convinces No One	579
D. The Primacy of Facility Affect in Hume's Theory of Understanding	583
E. Other Proofs of the Primacy of Facility in Hume's Science of Human Nature	586
Bibliography	593
Index	597