Introduction	I
PART I
Historical and conceptual background: practical reasoning in Aristotle, Hume, and Kant	II
1 Aristotle on practical reasoning and the structure of action	13
1 Deliberation	13
2 The practical syllogism	16
3 Weakness of will	18
4 Practical and theoretical reasoning	23
5 The explanation of action	27
6 Intrinsically motivated action	28
7 The structure of action	30
8 The ultimate ground of action	32
9 Conclusion	34
2 Hume and the instrumentalist conception of practical reasoning	37
1 The instrumental role of reason	37
2 Reasoning as an element in the genesis of action	41
3 Reasoning conceived as essentially comparative	43
4 Reason, rational action, and moral judgment	45
5 Weakness of will and Humean internalism	48
6 Humean instrumentalism	50
7 Conclusion	53
3 Kant and the autonomy of practical reason	57
1 Practical reason in the moral sphere	57
2 Practical reasoning and intention in the application of the Categorical Imperative	60
3 The motivational and normative power of reason	64
4 Weakness of will and the conflict between reason and inclination	68
5 The unity of practical and theoretical reason	72
6 Conclusion	74

Part II

Practical reasoning, practical arguments, and intentional action

79

4 The varieties and basic elements of practical reasoning 81

- 1 The diversity of practical reasoning 82
- 2 Practical reasoning, practical argument, and means–end inference 86
- 3 Conclusions of practical reasoning 89
- 4 A cognitive-motivational conception of practical reasoning 92
- 5 Some basic schemata for representing practical reasoning 96
- 6 Practical and theoretical reasoning 99
- 7 Practical reasoning and actions for reasons 102

5 Practical reasoning and intentional action 105

- 1 The range of intentional action 105
- 2 The phenomenology of reasoning 106
- 3 The reconstructive role of practical arguments 110
- 4 Inferentialism and the realization of practical arguments 113
- 5 Unconscious and self-deceptive elements in practical reasoning 116
- 6 Practical reasoning and reasoned action 119

6 Practical reasoning in the dynamics of action 122

- 1 The need for a dynamic account 122
- 2 Practical reasoning as a causative process 124
- 3 Perceptual and motivational triggers of action 126
- 4 Causality, lawlike connections, and intentional action 128
- 5 The dynamics of incontinence 130
- 6 Causality and freedom 133

Part III

Practical reasoning, ethical decision, and rational action 137

7 The assessment of practical reasoning 139

- 1 The range of criteria for appraising practical reasoning 139
- 2 Some patterns of practical reasoning 140
- 3 Criteria for assessing practical reasoning 144
- 4 A Kantian distinction generalized: basis in, vs. mere conformity with, practical reasoning 145

5	Some applications of the criteria of assessment	148
6	The defeasibility of practical reasoning	150
7	Combination and compositionality in practical reasoning	152
8	Rationality and relativity	155
8	General principles of practical appraisal	158
1	The normative power of moral reasons	158
2	A range of substantive principles of practical reason and practical reasoning	161
3	Hypothetical imperatives	162
4	Three kinds of normative principle	164
5	Two kinds of inference	166
6	Toward sound practical principles	168
9	Practical reasoning and moral judgment	172
1	Moral judgment and moral decision	173
2	A framework of moral principles	176
3	Moral principles as constituents in practical reasoning	178
4	Normative hierarchies	181
10	Practical reasoning in ethical decisions	187
1	The status of moral principles	187
2	Sketch of a model for making difficult ethical decisions	190
3	Practical reason, ethical decision, and morally justified action	197
11	The rationality of action and the plurality of value	200
1	The connection between practical reasoning and rational action	200
2	Practical reasoning and rationalization	203
3	Reasoned action, action for reasons, and normative grounds	206
4	Aristotelian, Humean, and Kantian views of rational action	210
5	A pluralistic conception of rational action	213
	Conclusion	217
