

Section I — The case for France

Marc Gurgand, CNRS-PSE and Crest, Paris

David Margolis, CNRS-TEAM and Crest, Paris

Mathieu Perona, ENS, Paris

1. Introduction	7
1.1. General introduction	7
1.2. French NUTS 2 and Objective 1 regions	8
2. Educational expenditure, enrolment and attainment	12
2.1. Regional expenditure	12
2.2. Educational attainment	18
2.3. Educational flows	24
3. Econometric estimates of the effects of schooling	27
3.1. Schooling and wages	27
3.2. Participation and employment	30
3.3. Schooling and aggregate productivity	32
4. Public policies, returns to schooling and incentives	35
4.1. Methodology	35
4.2. Observed and raw returns	40
4.3. Decomposing returns	43
4.4. A typology of regions	47
5. Conclusion	48
5.1. Main findings	48
5.2. Policy recommendations	49
References	51
List of abbreviations for region names	52

Section II — The case for Germany

Andreas Ammermüller, ZEW
Anja Kuckulenz, ZEW
Charlotte Lauer, ZEW
Thomas Zwick, ZEW

1. Executive summary	53
2. Introduction	56
3. Educational expenditure and attainment in the German states	57
3.1. Regional expenditure on secondary and university education	57
3.2. School attainment and other educational indicators	62
3.2.1. The evolution of regional school attainment levels	62
3.2.2. Attainment by cohort and the likely evolution of educational disparities	63
3.2.3. Other indicators of educational performance	68
4. Econometric estimates of the effects of schooling	71
4.1. Schooling and wages	71
4.2. Schooling, labour force participation and employment	75
4.3. Schooling and aggregate productivity	79
5. Private returns to schooling	83
5.1. Methodology	83
5.2. Average returns across all educational levels	84
5.3. Results by educational level	92
6. The long-term impact of schooling expenditure on public finances	98
6.1. Methodology	98
6.2. Results	100
7. The social rate of return to schooling	101
7.1. Data and sources	102
7.2. Parameter values	103
7.3. Results	104
7.4. The relative returns to investment in schooling and in physical capital	105
7.5. A typology of regions	107
References	109
Appendix	110
The German education system	110
Data sources	111