

INTRODUCTION	7
Socialist realism (9) – Literature with a purpose (11) – The short narrative prose forms in the GDR (13) – The popular Erzählung (14) – The emergence of the Kurzgeschichte (16) – Why the period since 1965 was chosen for this study (19) – The objectives of this study (21)
A. THEMES AND DIRECTIONS
Chapter I: THE ROLE OF WORK	27
Work and the development of the socialist personality (28) – Work and morality (29) – Work as the creator of man (31) – Work integrates the isolated indi- vidual (32) – Work unites individuals in the new society (34) – Work as an aesthetic experience (36) – The central role of work in the individual's life (37)
Chapter II: THE COLLECTIVE	39
The model collective (40) – Taking the step "vom Ich zum Wir" (42) – The motif of responsibility (46) – The collective as mentor (48) – Loyalty to the collective and the claims of family life (49) – The individual as a private person (52)
Chapter III: THE THEME OF CHANGE	57
The individual who brings about change (58) – The teacher and mentor (60) – The naive socialist (61) – The converted socialist (64) – The dreamer and man of vision (65) – The human side of technological progress (67) – The means of change (68) – The concept of "das Mögliche" (70)
B. TYPES AND SITUATIONS
Chapter IV: WOMEN IN THE NEW SOCIETY	75
The conflict between a career and love (76) – The woman as an individual in her own right (79) – The woman confronted by a choice (82) – Die bewußte Frau (84) – Harmonious partnerships (86) – Marriage and the new role of women (88)
Chapter V: THE OUTSIDER	91
An outsider because of old age (91) – An outsider because of immaturity (94) – The outsider portrayed as a negative example (96) – The outsider and the collective (98) – The outsider as an exotic element (98) – The "untypical" hero (100)
Chapter VI: THE HERO	103
The worker as a hero (104) – The "positive" hero (106) – Dealing with a stereotype (108) – The "Faustian" hero (110) – The "typical hero" (111)
CONCLUSION	115
SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY	119