

Contents

List of Figures	ix
List of Tables	xi
List of Illustrations	xiii
Abbreviations	xv
Foreword	xvii
Preface	xix
Section I. The Journey Begins	1
1 Images of Individuality	3
2 Theoretical Overview	19
3 Research Methodology	29
Section II. The Larger Perspective: Patterns of Commonality	47
4 Families of Origin and Procreation	49
5 Life in the “Game”	75
6 Violence and Abuse	115
7 Exiting with Optimism	141

Section III. Follow-up and Application	161
8 Three Years Later: A Longitudinal Investigation	163
9 Intervention Strategies and Policy Implications	191
Appendices	215
Selected Bibliography	219
Index	229
About the Author	233

Figures

2.1 Ecological Systems Theory	22
4.1 Manifestations of Literal Abandonment	56
4.2 Symbolic Abandonment: Failure to Protect	60
4.3 Symbolic Abandonment: Parental Unavailability	62
5.1 Addiction-Motivated Prostitution	80
5.2 Economically-Motivated Prostitution	81
6.1 Stress Theory	127
8.1 The “Entry-Exit-Re-Entry” Cycle	182
9.1 Individual-Level Intervention	200

Tables

3.1 Participant Demographic Data	31
3.2 Conventional and Naturalistic Determinations of Trustworthiness	39
6.1 Correlational Analyses: Variable Associations and Their Significance	130
6.2 Summary of Results from Regression Models	133
6.3 Summary of Hypotheses, Results from Data Analyses, and Implications	136
8.1 Demographic Data: Sample at Both Data Collection Points	167
8.2 Summary of Life Situations at Original and Follow-up Interviews	186

Illustrations

1. Entrance to the prison where 16 women were interviewed	107
2. Control Center at the Iowa Correctional Institute for Women	108
3. Working early morning on the “ho’ stroll”	109
4. Police presence is thick on the “ho’ stroll”	110
5. Char was living here when interviewed at follow-up	111
6. Back-side of apartment building off of the “ho’ stroll”	112
7. Quiet night on the “ho’ stroll”	113