

CONTENTS

---

Preface (Anne Paolucci)	1
1. Dante's Plan: The Ladder of Love	7
2. Dante's Age	16
3. The Greek Influence	25
4. Reality and Being : The Search for Unity	36
5. Order and Unity, The Pythagoreans and the Magic of Numbers	47
6. Fortune and the Heteronomy of Ends: Heraclitus and the Eternal Law	58
7. Democritus and the Sophists	69
8. Protagoras	80
9. The Sophists and the Doctrine of Individualism	91
10. Dante's Love Poem and the Moral Philosophy of Socrates	102
11. Plato's Ideas; the Foundation of Ethical Conduct	112
12. Plato's Concept of the Soul	123
13. The Structure and Purpose of the State in Plato	134
14. The Aristotelean Solution: Potency into Act	144
15. The Reception of Aristotle in the Thirteenth Century	155
16. Aristotle's Form, Matter, and the Doctrine of Places	167
17. Aristotle's Four Causes. Chance and Fortune. God as Pure Act	178
18. Aristotle's Doctrine of the "Golden Mean."

The Transcendent Logos made Flesh in Christianity	188
19. Aristotle's Idea of the State. Ethics as a Function of Politics	200
20. The Forms of Government	211
21. The "Organistic" Theory of the State	223
22. The Yearning for Salvation: Mediation	234
23. The New Religion of Faith, Hope, and Love. St. Augustine and St. Thomas	245
24. St. Augustine: The Source of Great Dogmas and Great Heresies	257
25. Introduction to The Divine Comedy : the Love Poem that Leads to God	264
Appendix
(Henry Paolucci) Aristotle's Potency and Act: Virtue and the Golden Mean	277
(Henry Paolucci) Aristotle's Ethics as the Premise for the State	289
(Henry Paolucci) The Greek Heritage	294
(Henry Paolucci) The Fall of the Empire and the New Religion	312