

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Introduction Robert S. Kirsner	1
Part I: Cognitive Grammar
1. Form, meaning, and behavior Ronald W. Langacker	21
2. Cataphoric pronouns as mental space designators Michael B. Smith	61
Part II: Theoretical issues in classical sign-based linguistics
3. Monosemy, homonymy and polysemy Wallis Reid	93
4. On the relationship between form and grammatical meaning in the linguistic sign Mark J. Elson	131
5. Revisiting the gap between meaning and message Joseph Davis	155
Part III: Analyses on the level of the classic linguistic sign
6. The givenness of background Zhuo Jing	177
7. The relevance of relevance in linguistic analysis Bob de Jonge	205
8. A sign-based analysis of English pronouns in conjoined expressions Nancy Stern	219
9. Semantic oppositions in the Hebrew verb system Noah Oron and Yishai Tobin	235
10. Grammaticization of 'to' and 'away' Kumiko Ichihashi-Nakayama	261

Part IV: Below and above the level of the sign

11. Interaction of physiology and communication in the make-up and distribution of stops in Lucknow Urdu Shabana Hameed	277
12. Between phonology and lexicon Yishai Tobin	289
13. Length of the extra-information phrase as a predictor of word order Ricardo Otheguy, Betsy Rodríguez-Bachiller, and Eulalia Canals	325
14. Word-order variation in spoken Spanish in constructions with a verb, a direct object, and an adverb Francisco Ocampo	341
15. Estrategias discursivas como parámetros para el análisis lingüístico Angelita Martínez	361
Index of names	381
Index of subjects	384