

CONTENTS

1.	Table of Illustrations	vii
2.	Introduction	ix
3.	Hans Sachs as a Character in Wagner's Meistersinger Frank Shaw: Bristol	1
4.	Comedy, Satire, Realism, Sachs Mike Rogers: Southampton	19
5.	The Contribution of Hans Sachs to the Debate on the Reformation in Nuremberg: a Study of the Religious Dialogues of 1524 Philip Broadhead: Goldsmiths' College, London	43
6.	Schöpfung, Fal und Erlösung: Hans Sachs and Genesis 1-3 Brian Murdoch: Stirling	63
7.	The Greek Tragedies of Hans Sachs Peter Skrine: Bristol	83
8.	Victim Heroines in Hans Sachs's Plays David Blamires: Manchester	105
9.	Hans Sachs and Boccaccio John L. Flood: Institute of Germanic Studies	139
10.	A Preliminary Approach to Word Formation in the Works of Hans Sachs and some of his Contemporaries John West: Newcastle	167
11.	Hans Sachs and the Nuremberg Fastnachtspiel Tradition of the 15th Century John E. Tailby: Leeds	187
12.	Hans Sachs and Till Eulenspiegel: the Taming of the Crude? Robert Aylett: Goldsmiths' College, London	197

TABLE OF ILLUSTRATIONS

	Title	Page
1.	Hans Sachs at the age of 68 Engraving by Hans Weigel the Elder.	viii
2.	Adam and Eve From the Nuremberg Chronicle (Nuremberg: Anton Koberger, 1493).	82
3.	Views of Athens and Troy As visualised by the illustrators of the Nuremberg Chronicle (see above).	104
4.	Die Beständigkeit (Constancy) An emblematic allegory depicting Adam's descendant Mahalaleel and his wife (1530) and giving a good idea of how Nuremberg renaissance artists visualised ancient garb.	138
5.	A courtly or noble couple Engraving by Hans Schäufelein from the 'Fürstentanz' sequence (1531?).	166
6.	Der Narrenfresser (1530) An accompanying text by Hans Sachs describes the lot of foolish men who allow themselves to be ruled by their wives. The print depicts a float (or 'hell') in a Nuremberg 'Schembart' or carnival procession.	196
7.	Hans Sachs (1546) From a woodcut depicting Sachs and Martin Luther.	224