

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements		page vii
Note		viii
I INTRODUCTION		I
X 2 POLITICAL REVOLT		4
The Development of Büchner's Political Principles		4
Der Hessische Landbote		20
Büchner's Later Political Attitude		36
3 METAPHYSICAL REVOLT		41
The Early Period		44
The Commentary on Descartes and Spinoza		53
Büchner's Scientific Work		62
The Solidarity of Revolt		69
4 AESTHETIC REVOLT		75
Idealization in Classical Literature and Art		77
Büchner's Revolt against Idealization		84
Some Critical Remarks on Büchner's Aesthetics		99
X 5 'DANTONS TOD'		103
Characterization		107
Style		140
Structure		149
Political and Metaphysical Significance		153
6 'LEONCE UND LENA'		157
Characterization		164
Style and Structure		177
7 'LENZ'		186
Structure and Style		194
Lenz and Oberlin		200
8 'WOYZECK'		217
Sources and Genesis		218

CONTENTS

The First Fragment (H ₁)	226
The Second and Third Fragments (H ₃ and H ₂)	236
The Last Fragment (H ₄)	245
✕ Revolt in Woyzeck	255
9 CONCLUSION	265
Notes	271
Chronological table	307
Bibliography	311
Index of names	317

PLATES

(between pages 104 and 105)

- I Christ at Emmaus, by Carel von Savoy (Reproduced by permission of the Director of the Hessisches Landesmuseum, Darmstadt)
- II Rolf Boysen as Danton, Louise Martini as Marion (Reproduced by permission of the photographer, Rosemarie Clausen)
- III Karl Streck and Julia Costa as Leonce and Lena (Reproduced by permission of the photographer, Pit Ludwig)
- IV Wolfgang Reinbacher as Woyzeck, Elisabeth Endriss as Marie (Reproduced by permission of Elisabeth Endriss and the photographer, Daisy Steinbeck)