

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	page v
Conventions	xi
1. Introduction	1
2. The Global Spread of Psychoactive Substances (c. 1600–1900)	10
The psychoactive revolution	10
Opium in Europe and Asia	16
The opium trade in East Asia	21
3. Opium before the ‘Opium War’ (c. 1600–1840)	24
Tobacco and the culture of smoke	24
Minerals, alcohol and tea culture	29
The spread of madak, c. 1660–1780	32
From madak to opium, c. 1780–1820	36
Traders, pirates and opium, 1793–1820	39
War on drugs: The ‘Opium War’	42
4. Opium for the People: Status, Space and Consumption (c. 1840–1940)	46
The expansion of opium culture	46
Varieties of opium	49
Estimates of opium consumption	51
Opium as social status	57
Opium consumption and consumer taste	62
The myth of the opium den	65
Opium for the people	68
Opium and suicide	70

5. 'The Best Possible and Sure Shield': Opium, Disease and Epidemics (c. 1840–1940)	74
Opium as a medical panacea	75
Prophylactic smoke and infectious diseases	79
Opium, narcotine and malaria	83
Opium as a social aphrodisiac	88
6. War on Drugs: Prohibition and the Rise of Narcophobia (c. 1880–1940)	93
'The horrors': Missionary debates on prohibition	96
Resisting cultural imperialism: The Royal Commission on Opium	101
Nationalism and prohibition in late imperial China	104
Narcophobia and the 'opium plague' in republican China	111
7. Curing the Addict: Prohibition and Detoxification (c. 1880–1940)	118
From dross to morphine: Miracle cures in the nineteenth century	119
Missionary asylums and the 'opium vice'	122
The great confinement: The persecution of opiate users in republican China	125
Prohibition and detoxification	130
Killing to cure: Detoxification treatments against 'addiction'	135
Capital crimes: The judicial killing of 'addicts'	142
8. Pills and Powders: The Spread of Semi-Synthetic Opiates (c. 1900–1940)	146
The new panacea: Morphine	147
Medical culture, miracle cures and magic pills	151
Heroin: The gentle drug	155
'Red terror': The mysterious red pills	156
Golden elixirs and white powders	160
Heroin as a global commodity	165

The resilience of opium smoking	170
9. Needle Lore: The Syringe in China (c. 1890–1950)	173
Needle culture	174
Hypodermic morphine and the magic needle	176
Syringes, vaccines, patents and quacks	179
Narcotic culture and the syringe	184
10. China's Other Drugs (c. 1900–1950)	192
From dionine to methadone	192
The stimulants: Cocaine and ephedrine	195
China's non-problem: Cannabis	199
A marker of modernity: The cigarette	201
11. Conclusion	206
Bibliography	270
Archival sources	270
Printed primary sources	273
Secondary sources	292
Character List	307
Index	313

ILLUSTRATIONS

between pages 146 and 147

1. Opium paraphernalia
2. A teahouse in Hong Kong, c. 1870
3. Wealthy opium smokers, end of Qing
4. Wealthy smokers posing with a variety of pipes, end of Qing
5. Poor opium smokers in an opium house, 1900
6. Poor opium smokers in an opium house, 1939
7. Anti-opium propaganda, 1932
8. Anti-opium propaganda, 1936
9. Anti-opium pills, 1904-5
10. Tatoo on an opium smoker in Beijing, 1936
11. A patient being given the blister method treatment, 1936
12. A government detoxification centre, 1930s
13. The ward for poor patients at a detoxification centre in Hunan, 1936
14. The ward for wealthy patients at the Nanjing detoxification hospital, 1936
15. Red pills
16. Drug user Ding Yuting before being executed in Qingdao, 1936
17. Itinerant doctor curing rheumatism by sticking needles into patients
18. Image of a drug injector, 1930s
19. A drug user being injected, 1930s
20. Two habitual morphine users in Manchuria, 1930s