

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Notes on the Contributors	xi
Introduction	1
Jean E. Godsall-Myers

PART ONE

Peccatum linguae and the Punishment of Speech Violations in the Middle Ages and Early Modern Times	23
Bettina Lindorfer
He Conquered al the Regne of Femenye: What Chaucer's Knight doesn't tell about Theseus	43
Laurel Broughton
Gender Conflicts, Miscommunication, and Communicative Communities in the Late Middle Ages: The Evidence of Fifteenth-Century German Verse Narratives	65
Albrecht Classen
With a Silver Spoon in his Mouth? Wolfram's Courtly Contestants	93
Jean E. Godsall-Myers

PART TWO

Negotiating the Present: Language and Trouthe in the Franklin's Tale	105
Andrea Schutz
Bilingualism and Betrayal in Chaucer's Summoner's Tale	125
Tom Shippey
The Discourse of Characterization in Jehan et Blonde	145
Carol Harvey
Ways of Using Abusive Language in La Celestina	167
Lourdes Albuixech
Index	187