

Contents

1	Introduction.....	1
2	Texts, database and methodology	5
2.1	The texts	5
2.1.1	The writers.....	6
2.2	The database	10
2.3	Analysis of the data.....	13
3	Morphological change.....	14
3.0	Introduction	14
3.1	Language change	15
3.2	Morphological theory	16
3.2.1	Wurzel	19
3.2.2	Iconicity	23
3.2.3	Bybee.....	24
3.2.4	Reanalysis and abduction.....	25
3.2.5	Morphological Economy	25
3.2.6	Analogy	26
3.2.6.1	Analogy and rules	28
3.2.7	Analogical leveling.....	31
3.2.7.1	Accounting for leveling	32
3.2.7.2	The direction of leveling.....	35
3.2.8	Traditional typologies of morphological change	36
3.3	Conclusion	37
4	Inflectional endings.....	38
4.0	Introduction	38
4.1	1st singular.....	38
4.2	2nd singular	39
4.2.1	Discussion.....	41
4.3	2nd and 3rd plural.....	41
4.4	1st and 3rd plural present of sein	43
4.5	1st plural with immediately following pronominal subject.....	47
4.6	Chapter summary	49
5	Stem alternations.....	51
5.0	Introduction	51
5.1	Stem-vowel alternations.....	51
5.1.1	Strong verbs - present tense.....	51
5.1.1.1	Class II.....	51
5.1.1.2	Classes IIIb, IV, and V	53
5.1.1.2.1	Preliminary discussion.....	53

5.1.1.2.2	The Nuremberg findings.....	54
5.1.1.2.3	Discussion of the findings.....	55
5.1.1.3	Stem vowels of kommen and genommen	55
5.1.1.4	Classes VI and VII.....	59
5.1.1.5	Summary of present-tense stem-vowel alternations.....	59
5.1.2	Strong verbs - preterite	60
5.1.2.1	Class I.....	60
5.1.2.2	Class II.....	62
5.1.2.3	Class III	63
5.1.2.4	Summary of preterite stem-vowel alternations.....	65
5.1.3	Weak verbs (Rückumlaut)	65
5.1.3.1	Background.....	65
5.1.3.2	The Nuremberg findings.....	66
5.1.3.3	Summary of Rückumlaut alternations.....	68
5.1.4	Modals.....	69
5.1.4.1	Preliminary discussion.....	69
5.1.4.2	The Nuremberg findings.....	77
5.1.4.3	Remarks on wellen	85
5.1.5	Preterite and preterite participle of wissen	86
5.1.5.1	Background.....	86
5.1.5.2	The Nuremberg findings.....	86
5.1.5.3	Discussion.....	87
5.1.6	tun	88
5.1.6.1	Preterite indicative.....	88
5.1.6.2	Preterite participle and infinitive	89
5.1.7	Present tense of gehen and stehen	91
5.2	Stem-final consonant alternations	92
5.2.1	Verner's-Law alternations	92
5.2.2	Other stem-final consonant alternations.....	97
5.3	Changes in etymologically suppletive alternations	99
5.3.1	Discussion.....	100
5.4	The directionality of leveling.....	105
5.4.1	Summary of findings on paradigm leveling.....	105
5.4.2	Accounting for the direction of leveling.....	106
5.5	Chapter summary	110
6	Inflectional-class transfer	111
6.0	Introduction	111
6.1	Movement from one strong class to another	111
6.2	Movement from weak to strong	113
6.3	Movement from strong to weak	114
6.3.1	gewest – gewesen	118
6.4	Movement from preterite-present to weak.....	121
6.5	Discussion.....	121
6.6	Chapter summary	126

7 The ge- participle prefix.....	128
7.0 Introduction	128
7.1 Verbs with non-initial primary stress	128
7.2 Verbs with initial stress.....	129
7.2.1 Verbs which had lacked the prefix in MHG	129
7.2.2 Lexical effects among verbs with initial velar stops	130
7.2.3 Accounting for the prefixless participles in the g-/k- verbs	133
7.2.4 Syncope-induced loss of ge-	140
7.3 Chapter summary	142
8 Sociolinguistic variation and its relation to change.....	144
8.1 Variation in the Nuremberg texts.....	144
8.2 The relationship between variation and change	147
Appendix A: Verb frequency list	149
Appendix B: Sample lines from data tables	159
Appendix C: Text sources.....	161
References.....	163