

CONTENTS

	Preface to the first edition	page ix
	Preface to the second edition	ix
	Principal references	x
1	What is morphology?	1
	The scope of morphology	9
	Morphology and general linguistic theory	19
2	Word, word-form and lexeme	24
	Practical illustrations	31
	Lexical and inflectional morphology	36
3	Inflections and word-formation	42
	Why the distinction?	43
	Change and indeterminacy	54
4	Lexical derivation	61
	Formations	63
	Productivity	69
5	Compounds	82
	The syntax of compounds	85
	Compounds and non-compounds	93
6	Morphemes and allomorphs	102
	An agglutinating system	107
	Types of alternation	114
7	Morphological processes	122
	Inflectional formations	126
	Types of morphological process	130
8	Morphophonemics	145
	Sandhi	149
	The scope of morphophonemics	157

9	Properties and their exponents	168
	Flection	170
	Types of exponence	179
10	Paradigms	185
	An ancient model	188
	A modern adaptation	197
11	Inflectional morphology and syntax	206
	What are words?	208
	Problems and discrepancies	215
12	Iconicity	223
	Central and peripheral categories	226
	Marked and unmarked	234
	Index	246