

Table of Contents

Preface	i
Table of Contents	iii
Chapter 1: A Basis for Definitions	1
1. Relevance of the Problem	1
2. The Framework	3
2.1. Conditions on an Answer.....	4
2.2. The Status of Tests.....	7
2.3. Motivation of Tests.....	8
2.4. Criteria for Definitions.....	10
2.5. Properties of Tests.....	13
2.6. Methodology.....	16
3. Word Manager	17
Chapter 2: On the Definition of Compounding	23
1. Properties of Compounds	24
1.1. The Components of a Compound.....	25
1.1.1. Synthetic compounds.....	26
1.1.2. Bound Stems.....	26
1.1.3. Inflection inside Compounds.....	29
1.2. The Internal Boundary of a Compound.....	31
1.2.1. Stress.....	32
1.2.2. Phonological Change.....	34
1.2.3. The Strong Boundary Condition.....	36

1.3. Headedness.....	38
1.4. The Relation between the Head and the Modifier.....	42
1.4.1. Syntactic Relations.....	43
1.4.2. Ambiguity versus Vagueness	45
1.4.3. Compounds as Words	49
1.5. The External Boundary of a Compound.....	52
1.5.1. Cohesiveness.....	52
1.5.2. Modification.....	54
1.5.3. Referential Opacity.....	59
2. The Definition and the Linguistic Tests.....	65
2.1. Evaluation of Defining Criteria.....	65
2.2. Definition and Tests for H-compounding.....	74
3. Constructions and Instances of H-compounding.....	77
3.1. H-compounding and the Lexicon	78
3.2. Nominal Heads	81
3.2.1. Genitive Nouns as Non-Heads	81
3.2.2. The Partitive Construction	83
3.2.3. Verbal Non-Heads	86
3.2.4. Relational Adjectives	89
3.2.5. Adjectival Non-Heads	98
3.3. Non-Nominal Heads	103
3.3.1. Adjectival Heads.....	103
3.3.2. Verbal Heads	105
3.4. Synthetic compounds.....	108
4. Other Types of Compounding.....	114
4.1. Exocentric compounding.....	114
4.1.1. Data.....	115
4.1.2. Productivity.....	116
4.1.3. Analysis	118
4.2. Copulative compounding	122
4.2.1. Types of Copulatives	122
4.2.2. The Status of Copulatives	126
4.3. Neoclassical compounding	130
4.3.1. Productivity and Non-Native Stems.....	130
4.3.2. Structure and Category Assignment.....	132
4.3.3. Types of Neoclassical compounds.....	133
5. Summary and Conclusions	136

Chapter 3: The Distinction between Inflection and Derivation.....145

1. Morphological Differences.....	146
1.1. Greenberg's Generalization.....	147
1.1.1. Some Counterexamples	148
1.1.2. Participles	151
1.1.3. Adverbs	152
1.1.4. Implications.....	154
1.2. Other Morphological Differences	156
2. Syntactic and Semantic Differences.....	159
2.1. Categories and Features.....	160
2.2. Grammatical and Conceptual Meaning	163
2.2.1. Cognitive Grounding.....	164
2.2.2. Opacity	166
2.2.3. Determinability.....	167
2.2.4. Anderson's Generalization.....	169
2.2.5. Summary.....	173
3. Differences in Lexical Relations.....	174
3.1. Paradigms.....	175
3.2. Paradigms and Productivity	176
3.2.1. Full Productivity.....	177
3.2.2. Idiosyncratic Gaps.....	178
3.2.3. Idiosyncratic Restrictions on Rule Applicability.....	180
3.2.4. Semantic Idiosyncrasies.....	182
3.2.5. Conclusion.....	185
3.3. Paradigms as Units.....	186
3.3.1. Derivational and Syntactic Unity.....	187
3.3.2. Substitutability	190
4. Results of the Comparison.....	192

Chapter 4: The Distinction between Inflection and Cliticization.....197

1. Phonological Criteria.....	199
2. Paradigmatic Properties of the Appendage.....	204
3. The Combination of an Appendage and an Anchor.....	208

4. The Morphological Position of the Appendage.....	214
4.1. The Position Relative to the Anchor.....	214
4.2. The Order of Appendages.....	216
4.3. The Relative Position of Clitics and Affixes.....	218
5. The Syntactic Position of the Appendage.....	221
5.1. The Domain of a Clitic.....	222
5.2. The Restrictivity of the Characterization.....	226
5.3. Head Clitics.....	229
6. Syntactic Properties of Appended Words.....	232
6.1. Syntactic Categories.....	233
6.2. Syntactic Availability of the Top Node.....	235
6.3. Syntactic Availability of Appendages and Anchors.....	237
7. Types of Exceptions.....	240
7.1. Morphophonological Idiosyncrasies.....	241
7.2. Arbitrary Gaps.....	244
7.3. Zero-Realization and Haplology.....	246
7.4. Semantic Idiosyncrasies.....	249
8. Results of the Comparison.....	249

Chapter 5: The Definitions of Inflection and Derivation.....257

1. A Fine-Grained Classification.....	257
1.1. Meaningless Variation.....	258
1.2. Configurationally Determined Variation.....	262
1.3. Meaningful Variation.....	265
1.4. Phrasally Determined Variation.....	271
1.5. Function Words.....	272
1.6. Derivation.....	276
1.7. Compounding.....	279
2. From Classes to Phenomena.....	279

2.1. Defining Stemformation	281
2.2. Defining Inflection.....	284
2.2.1. Case, Number, and Gender.....	285
2.2.2. Inappropriate Agreement.....	288
2.2.3. Periphrastic Constructions.....	292
2.2.4. Conclusion.....	294
2.3. Defining Derivation	298
2.3.1. Derivation and Compounding	299
2.3.2. Functors and Functional Categories.....	301
2.3.3. Conclusion.....	302
3. Tests and their Application	304
3.1. Tests for Inflection	304
3.2. Tests for Derivation.....	307
3.3. The Position of the Lexicon	310
3.4. Some Examples of Test Applications.....	313
3.4.1. French Weak Object Pronouns.....	314
3.4.2. Turkish Case and Number.....	315
3.4.3. English Unstressed Negation.....	317
3.4.4. Passive	318
3.4.5. Adjectives.....	320
Conclusion.....	323
References.....	329
Indexes	345
Authors Index	347
Index of Examples.....	351
Subject Index.....	357