

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE . . . . .	VII
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS . . . . .	XIII
INTRODUCTION . . . . .	XXV
ON SOLIDS, LIQUIDS AND GROUNDS: LOCATING THE QUESTION . . . . .	XXV
SPECIFIC AIMS AND SCOPE OF THE STUDY . . . . .	XXIX
OVERVIEW OF THE CHAPTERS . . . . .	XXXI

CHAPTER ONE

THE ADVENTURES OF PRAXIS:

A CRITICAL ENCOUNTER OF THREE TRADITIONS

1.1 PRAXIS, THEORIA AND POIESIS: THE ARISTOTELIAN TRADI- TION . . . . .	1
1.1.1 Praxis and Theoria: Which of Them Contributes Best to             Human Well-Being? . . . . .	3
1.1.1.1 Theory and Practice, Philosophy and Politics . . . . .	3
1.1.1.2 The Primacy of Theoria ? The Contemplative Ideal . . . . .	5
1.1.1.3 The Primacy of Praxis ? The 'Activist' Ideal . . . . .	9
1.1.2 Praxis and Poiesis: The Ambiguities of Human Action . . . . .	12
1.1.2.1 'Doing' and 'Making', 'Action' and 'Production' . . . . .	12
1.1.2.2 Distinctions and Blurred Boundaries . . . . .	13
1.1.2.3 Techne and Phronesis : Redrawing Borders . . . . .	15
1.1.2.4 Praxis in the Polis : The Social Conditions of Its Possibility . . . . .	25
1.1.3 Aristotle on Praxis: Summing Up . . . . .	28
1.2 PRAXIS AND ALIENATION: THE MARXIST TRADITION . . . . .	29
1.2.1 From Aristotle to Marx: Flashback . . . . .	30
1.2.1.1 Praxis in Snapshots . . . . .	30
1.2.1.2 Philosophy of Action after Hegel: Cieszkowski . . . . .	39
1.2.1.3 The Left Hegelians: Bauer, Ruge and Hess . . . . .	41
1.2.2 Alienation and Human Species-Being: Praxis in the 'Young             Marx' . . . . .	44
1.2.2.1 Praxis and Human Alienation . . . . .	45
1.2.2.2 Beyond Philosophy: From Criticism to Revolutionary Action . . . . .	48

1.2.3	'Interpreting' and 'Changing' the World: Theses on Feuerbach . . . . .	50
1.2.4	Labour-Power as Social Praxis: The 'Mature' Marx . . .	54
1.2.5	Marxist Praxis after Marx: Fast Forward . . . . .	56
1.2.6	Marx on Praxis: By Way of Synthesis . . . . .	60
1.3	TWO TRADITIONS OF PRAXIS: A CRITICAL ENCOUNTER . . .	62
1.3.1	Reclaiming Poiesis for Praxis: Marx's Appropriation and Critique of Aristotle . . . . .	62
1.3.2	Beyond Poiesis: An Aristotelian Critique of Marx . . . .	67
1.4	THE 'PRACTICE TURN' IN CONTEMPORARY THEORY . . . .	73
1.4.1	Practice(s) in the Anthropological-Sociological Sciences . . .	75
1.4.1.1	Clifford Geertz: Cultural Practices and Symbolic Interpretation . . . . .	75
1.4.1.2	Erving Goffman: 'Infinitely Small' Practices of Human Interaction . . . . .	78
1.4.2	Practice(s) in the Philosophical Sciences . . . . .	81
1.4.2.1	Alasdair MacIntyre: Practices, Virtue and Tradition . . .	81
1.4.2.2	Michel de Certeau: Towards Heterological Practice . . .	84
1.4.3	the Contemporary 'Turn to Practice' and the Praxis Tradition . . . . .	88
1.4.3.1	What is Practice(s)? . . . . .	88
1.4.3.2	Practice/Praxis: The Sociological Concept and Its Telic Notion . . . . .	91
1.4.3.3	Theory and Practice: Beyond 'Subjects' and 'Structures'	95

CHAPTER TWO

THEORY OF PRACTICE AND PRACTICE OF THEORY

BOURDIEU'S PRAXEOLOGY AND ITS EPISTEMOLOGICAL PRESUPPOSITIONS

2.1	TOWARDS A THEORY OF PRACTICE . . . . .	100
2.1.1	Social Phenomenology, Social Physics and Beyond . . .	100
2.1.1.1	An Epistemological Break with Subjectivism . . . . .	101
	Existentialist Voluntarism: Jean-Paul Sartre . . . . .	101
	Rational Action Theory: Jon Elster . . . . .	104
	Symbolic Interactionism and Ethnomethodology: Harold Garfinkel . . . . .	106
2.1.1.2	An Epistemological Break with Objectivism . . . . .	110
	Structural Anthropology: Claude Lévi-Strauss . . . . .	110
	Structuralist Marxism: Louis Althusser . . . . .	115

2.1.1.3	Towards Social Praxeology: Beyond Subjectivism and Objectivism . . . . .	118
	‘Gift-Exchange’ Beyond Mauss and Lévi-Strauss: A Paradigm of Practice . . . . .	119
	‘The Work of Time’: From Rules to Strategies . . . . .	121
2.1.2.	‘Le Sens Pratique’: Bourdieu’s Conceptual Triad . . . . .	124
2.1.2.1	Habitus: The ‘Feel for the Game’ . . . . .	125
	‘Habitus’: The Development of a Concept in Bourdieu . . . . .	126
	‘Habitus’: Towards a Definition . . . . .	130
	Practice: Encounter of Two Histories . . . . .	137
2.1.2.2	Capital: The Stakes in the Game . . . . .	140
	Interest, Illusio and Libido . . . . .	140
	Forms of Capital: Economic, Cultural and Social . . . . .	144
	Symbolic Capital, Symbolic Power and Symbolic Violence . . . . .	147
2.1.2.3	Champ: Social Space and the Fields of Power . . . . .	159
	From Substance to Relations: Ernst Cassirer . . . . .	160
	The Field of Power: Beyond Consensualism and Total Domination . . . . .	164
	Fields of Power: Beyond the ‘Dominant Class’ and the ‘Élite’ . . . . .	167
	Social Space and the Fields of Power . . . . .	169
2.1.3	Recapitulation: Practice = {(Habitus) (Capital) + Field} . . . . .	173
2.2	TOWARDS A PRACTICE OF THEORY . . . . .	175
2.2.1	The French Epistemological Tradition . . . . .	176
2.2.1.1	Gaston Bachelard: The Philosophy of Science . . . . .	177
	The New Scientific Spirit: Towards a Non-Cartesian Epistemology . . . . .	178
	Key Notions: Epistemological Obstacles, Epistemological Breaks [Ruptures] and Epistemological Couples . . . . .	181
	Decentering Reason, Unfixing the Subject . . . . .	184
2.2.1.2	Georges Canguilhem: The History of the Sciences . . . . .	187
	Continuities: From Physical Sciences to Life Sciences . . . . .	187
	History of Science as History of Concepts . . . . .	190
	(Dis)continuities: Beyond Bachelard . . . . .	191
2.2.1.3	Mapping Bourdieu: The Sciences of the Social . . . . .	193
	From the Philosophy of Science to the Social Sciences . . . . .	193
	Bourdieu’s Trajectory in Three Phases . . . . .	193
2.2.2	A Critique of Empiricism . . . . .	195
2.2.2.1	The Social Fact is Won: First Epistemological Break . . . . .	196

2.2.2.2	The Social Fact is Constructed: ' Le Métier ' as ' Ars Inveniendi ' . . . . .	197
2.2.2.3	The Social Fact is Confirmed: Verification in Methodic Circles . . . . .	199
2.2.3	" Meanwhile... ": Fundamental Break or Going Beyond? . . . . .	200
2.2.4	A Critique of Theoreticism . . . . .	204
2.2.4.1	Theory of Practice: Second Epistemological Break . . . . .	204
2.2.4.2	'Polythesis' in Practical Logic . . . . .	205
2.2.4.3	The Logic of Practice: Practice vs. Science . . . . .	208
2.2.5	A Critique of the 'Scholastic Point of View' . . . . .	210
2.2.5.1	From 'Epistemological Vigilance' to 'Reflexivity' . . . . .	210
	From 'Psychoanalysis of Reason' to 'Epistemological Vigilance' . . . . .	210
	Reflexivity in Bourdieu's Work . . . . .	211
2.2.5.2	The Practice of Scientific Reflexivity . . . . .	213
	Reflexivity: Beyond Gouldner and Giddens . . . . .	213
	A Threefold Reflexive Program . . . . .	216
2.2.5.3	Critiquing the 'Scholastic Point of View': Towards a Rationalist Historicism . . . . .	218
	The 'Scholastic View': From J. L. Austin to Plato . . . . .	218
	Forms of Scholastic Illusion . . . . .	220
	A Rationalist Historicism: Towards a Realpolitik of Reason . . . . .	225
2.2.6	Recapitulation: Towards a Reflexive Practice of Theory . . . . .	228
2.3	TOWARDS A FRAMEWORK FOR THEOLOGICAL METHODOLOGY . . . . .	230
2.3.1	Bourdieu: Critical Perspectives . . . . .	230
2.3.1.1	Reproductive Domination: Whither Resistance and Social Change? . . . . .	232
	'Keeping Order': Education as 'Cultural Transmission of Social Inequality'? . . . . .	232
	Habitus as 'Regulated Improvisations': Inventive or Reproductive? . . . . .	235
	Moves and Counter-moves . . . . .	237
2.3.1.2	Conflictive Sociality: Whither Collective Solidarity? . . . . .	240
	'Interest' and 'Strategies' vs. Commonly Shared Norms and Values . . . . .	240
	Is Disinterested Act Possible? Bourdieu's Response . . . . .	243
2.3.2	Practice and Theory: Towards Appropriating Bourdieu for Theology . . . . .	245
2.3.2.1	Taking Stock of the Criticisms: Bourdieu and Beyond . . . . .	245
2.3.2.2	A Synthesis of the Praxis Traditions: Towards an Epistemological and Social Theory for Theological Discourse . . . . .	248

CHAPTER THREE

PRAXIS AND THEOLOGY

A CLOSER LOOK AT TWO CONTEMPORARY MODELS

3.1	PRAXIS IN THEOLOGICAL DISCOURSE: ATTEMPTS AT MAPPING	254
3.1.1	Praxis and the Classical Tasks of Theology: Towards Liberation Theology	254
3.1.1.1	Sacra Pagina: Theology as Wisdom	254
3.1.1.2	Scientia: Theology as Rational Knowledge	257
3.1.1.3	Praxis: Theology as Critical Reflection on Praxis	260
3.1.2	Theory and Praxis in Contemporary Theologies: Towards A Political Theology	262
3.1.2.1	The Primacy of Theory	262
3.1.2.2	The Primacy of Praxis	264
3.1.2.3	The Primacy of Faith-Love	265
3.1.2.4	Critical Theoretic Correlations	266
3.1.2.5	Critical Praxis Correlations	267
3.1.3	Theology and Christian Practice(s): Towards a Post-Liberal Theology	269
3.1.3.1	Towards a Cultural-Linguistic Model of Theology	269
3.1.3.2	Beyond Correlation: Christian Practice(s) and the Task of Theology	274
3.2	PRAXIS AND 'THEOLOGICAL SCIENCE': CLODOVIS BOFF	277
3.2.1	Theology and Praxis: Between Spiritualism and Activism	279
3.2.1.1	The Priest, the Activist and the Theologian: A Conversation	279
3.2.1.2	Liberation Theology and Its Early Critics	280
3.2.1.3	Ideologization of the Faith: Boff's Fundamental Problematic	286
3.2.2	In Search of a Framework: Opting for Althusser	288
3.2.2.1	Sartrean Humanism and Structural Marxism: The French Debate	288
3.2.2.2	The Process of Theoretical Practice and Its Theological Appropriation	291
3.2.3	Accounting for Praxis: Theology and the Sciences of the Social	294
3.2.3.1	Empiricism and Theologism: Epistemological Obstacles	295
3.2.3.2	Socio-analytic Mediation: Towards a Constitutive Relationship Between Theology and Praxis	298
3.2.4	Accounting for Theory: Theology in Its Internal Regime	301
3.2.4.1	Theological 'Pertinency': The Theologicity of Theology	302
	An Althusserian Reading of Thomas Aquinas	303

From 'First Theology' to 'Second Theology': An Archeology of a Theology of the Political . . . . .	305
3.2.4.2 Epistemological Breaks: Differentiating Salvation, Faith and Theology . . . . .	309
The 'Real Object' and the 'Object of Knowledge': An Althusserian Distinction . . . . .	310
Salvation: The 'Real' of Theology and Its Appropriation in Praxis . . . . .	311
Faith and Theology: Non-Methodical Awareness vs. Scientific Discourse . . . . .	313
3.2.4.3 Hermeneutic Mediation: Towards Constituting 'Christian Positivity' . . . . .	315
Althusser or Ricoeur? A Case of 'Semantic Mix' . . . . .	315
The Hermeneutic Circle . . . . .	318
3.2.5 Dialectic of Theory and Praxis: Theology in Its External Regime . . . . .	319
3.2.5.1 The External Determinations of Theology . . . . .	320
'Topos': The Theologian's Social Location . . . . .	320
'Kairos': Theology and History . . . . .	321
'Telos': Theology and the Politics of Theory . . . . .	323
3.2.5.2 Dialectic of Theory and Praxis: Smuggling in Hegel and Sartre Through the Back Door . . . . .	325
Dialectic in Its Minor and Major Keys . . . . .	325
The Theology of the Political in Dialectical Frame . . . . .	327
3.3 THEOLOGY AND CHRISTIAN PRACTICE: JOHN MILBANK . . . . .	329
3.3.1 Radical Orthodoxy: Locating the Terrain . . . . .	330
3.3.1.1 Radical Orthodoxy's Theological Self-Positioning . . . . .	330
3.3.1.2 'The Hero in Quest of the Lost Crown' . . . . .	333
3.3.1.3 The Rejection of Secular Reason: Beyond the Modern and the Postmodern . . . . .	334
3.3.2 For and Against Praxis: Beyond Marx . . . . .	341
3.3.2.1 Salvation as Individual Transcendence: Where is Sociality? . . . . .	341
3.3.2.2 A Problem of (Political) Praxis: Where is Transcendence? . . . . .	347
3.3.2.3 A Problem of (Social) Theory: Where is Theological Autonomy? . . . . .	350
3.3.2.4 The Problem of 'Foundational Praxis': Where is Narrativity? . . . . .	352
3.3.3 For and Against Practice: Beyond Aristotle . . . . .	355
3.3.3.1 Beyond Agonistics: From Dialectic to Rhetoric . . . . .	355
3.3.3.2 Recovering Theoria : From Metis to Mimesis . . . . .	359

3.3.3.3 Recovering Poiesis : From Praxis to Aesthesis . . . . .	362
3.3.3.4 Beyond Aristotle: From Phronesis to Caritas . . . . .	364
3.3.4 Theology as Social Science: Postmodern Critical Augustinianism . . . . .	366
3.3.4.1 Founding the Christian Metanarrative: For and Against Lindbeck . . . . .	367
3.3.4.2 'Making It Strange': Narrating Augustine's 'Altera Civitas' . . . . .	370
Re-reading History: A Tale of Two Cities . . . . .	371
Re-reading Ecclesiology: Between 'Polis' and 'Oikos' . . . . .	372
Re-reading Ethics: Between 'Arete' and 'Officium' . . . . .	375
Re-reading Ontology: Between Difference and Harmony . . . . .	377
3.3.5 The Task of Theology: Poetic Explication of Christian Practice . . . . .	379
3.4 THEOLOGICAL METHOD: FROM PRAXIS TO PRACTICE TO POETICS . . . . .	381

CHAPTER FOUR

THEOLOGY, EPISTEMOLOGY AND SOCIAL THEORY:
EXPLORATIONS IN THEOLOGICAL METHOD

4.1 THEOLOGICAL AND EPISTEMOLOGY: BETWEEN 'THEORIA' AND 'PRAXIS' . . . . .	386
4.1.1 Theology as 'Sacra Doctrina' . . . . .	386
4.1.1.1 Evacuating Philosophy: 'Only Theology Overcomes Metaphysics' . . . . .	386
4.1.1.2 Knowledge as Participation: The Convertibility of Truth and Being . . . . .	389
4.1.1.3 Faith and Reason: Different 'Intensities' in One Single Extension . . . . .	393
4.1.1.4 Some Critical Comments . . . . .	397
On the Knowledge of Truth and Participation in Being . . . . .	397
On Reason and Faith, Metaphysics and Theology . . . . .	410
4.1.2 Theology as 'Scientia' . . . . .	414
4.1.2.1 Theological Method as a Theory of 'Theoretical Practice' . . . . .	415
4.1.2.2 The Extent of Epistemological Break: Reading Aquinas . . . . .	416
Epistemological Break in Boff's Methodology . . . . .	417
The Ambiguities of 'Sacra Doctrina': Beyond the Epistemological Project of Aquinas . . . . .	420
Continuity vs. Discontinuity: Chenu and Boff on 'Quasi-subalternation' . . . . .	422

4.1.2.3	Some Critical Voices . . . . .	424
	The Problem of Theoreticism in Boff's Theological Method . . . . .	424
	Theoreticism: An Althusserian Legacy . . . . .	426
4.1.2.4	Later Boff: In Search of a New Epistemological Framework? . . . . .	429
4.1.3	Theology Beyond Intuitionism and Theoreticism . . . . .	433
4.1.3.1	Epistemological Couples: Beyond the Subjectivist-Objectivist Impasse . . . . .	433
	Milbank's Intuitionism: In Need of the First Epistemological Break . . . . .	434
	Boff's Theoreticism: Missing the Second Epistemological Break . . . . .	436
	Theology as 'Fides in Statu Scientiae': 'Le Donné et le Construit' . . . . .	438
4.1.3.2	Polythesis or the 'Fuzzy' Logic of Practice: Creative Transgressions of the Frontiers of Science . . . . .	439
4.1.3.3	Back to the 'Rough Grounds': Dialectics of Theory and Praxis in Theology . . . . .	444
	The Unity of Theory and Praxis . . . . .	445
	Immersing Reason in the 'World of When and Where' . . . . .	446
4.1.4	Reflexivity and the Limits of Theological Discourse . . . . .	452
4.1.4.1	'All is Straw': From Sacra Doctrina to Scientia Dei . . . . .	452
4.1.4.2	'Fides ex Auditū': Habitus, Theological Language and Its Limits . . . . .	454
4.1.4.3	The 'Modesty' of Theology: Towards Reflexive Theologizing . . . . .	457
	A Three-Step Reflexive Program . . . . .	457
	Where Milbank and Boff Failed . . . . .	458
	Reflexive Theologizing: Towards Some Structural-Political Forms . . . . .	462
4.2	THEOLOGY AND SOCIAL THEORY: BETWEEN 'PRAXIS' AND 'POIESIS' . . . . .	472
4.2.1	Between Modernity and Postmodernity: Assessing the Contemporary Context of Theological Reflection . . . . .	472
4.2.1.1	The Blumenberg-Löwith Debate: (Il)legitimacy of the Modern Age . . . . .	473
4.2.1.2	Managing the Cartesian Legacy: Theology and Modernity . . . . .	481
4.2.1.3	Reading Augustine: 'Civitas Dei' as Social Theory? . . . . .	484
4.2.2	Between Praxis and Poetics: Assessing the 'Aesthetic Turn' in Theology . . . . .	491

4.2.2.1 Theology and 'High Aesthetics': The 'Baroque' and the Social Conditions of Its Possibility . . . . .	491
4.2.2.2 'De Gustibus Non est Disputandum': Taste as Distinction . . . . .	496
4.2.2.3 'Popular Aesthetics' and Social Transformation . . . . .	499
4.2.3 Between Dialectics and Narrativity: Social Theory in Theology . . . . .	505
4.2.3.1 Theology and the Social Sciences: A Turbulent Relationship . . . . .	505
4.2.3.2 'Socialism of the Gift, Socialism by Grace': A Non-Dialectical Social Theory? . . . . .	511
4.2.3.3 Marxism and Liberation Theology: 'Walking Backwards to the Future' . . . . .	519
4.3 THEOLOGY, EPISTEMOLOGY AND SOCIAL THEORY: A SYNTHESIS . . . . .	526

CONCLUSION

PRAXIS AND THEOLOGICAL METHOD: A RETROSPECT . . . . .	529
Theoria and the Turn To Praxis . . . . .	531
Praxis and the Turn to Poiesis . . . . .	533
PRAXIS AND THEOLOGICAL METHOD: PROSPECTS . . . . .	536
See [Tan-aw]: Practice(s) as 'Locus Theologicus' . . . . .	538
'La Vida Cotidiana': Towards a Theology of Everyday Life . . . . .	538
Language, Practice(s) and Forms of Life: Theology as Grammar . . . . .	541
The 'Double-Vérité' of Practice(s): Resistance and Domination . . . . .	544
Judge [Lantaw]: The 'Feel for the [Divine] Game' . . . . .	545
From 'Tan-aw' to 'Lantaw': 'To See with God's Eyes' . . . . .	545
Epistemological Breaks: 'Sensus Fidelium' and the Craft of Theology . . . . .	548
Act [Lakaw]: Towards a Theology of Resistance . . . . .	552
From 'Lantaw' to 'Lakaw': Provoking a 'Redemptive Shock' . . . . .	552
Everyday Practices as Oblique Resistance . . . . .	554
INDEX . . . . .	561