

Contents

List of illustrations	page ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii

1 Introduction: the inter-war years 1

Jacques Copeau at the Vieux-Colombier and afterwards. The Cartel: Louis Jouvet, Charles Dullin, Georges and Ludmila Pitoëff, Gaston Baty. Surrealist theatre and Antonin Artaud; Jean Cocteau; Jean Anouilh. Firmin Gémier and the Théâtre National Populaire; the Front Populaire and political theatre. Léon Chancerel and Catholic theatre. Dullin's report on decentralisation. The state of French theatre at the outbreak of war.

2 The Occupation 16

Conditions for theatres. Cocteau's plays and films. Giraudoux's Sodome et Gomorrhe; his death and last works. Henry de Montherlant; the collapse of the hero. Joan of Arc plays. Jean-Louis Barrault and his production of Le Soulier de satin by Paul Claudel; Barrault's production style and Claudel's dramatic technique; contrast between Montherlant and Claudel; Barrault: an observer and a visionary. Copeau's Le Théâtre populaire; touring groups and companies performing outside Paris; popular culture and educational movements of the Resistance.

3 The Parisian theatre 1: philosophical melodrama 34

Anouilh's Antigone and differing interpretations; his later plays: a theatre of masks. Les Mouches by Jean-Paul Sartre: the tragedy of free choice; bad faith dramatised: Huis Clos; the struggle for authenticity: Le Diable et le bon Dieu; history as dialectical process: Les Séquestrés d'Altona; Sartre's theatre: a world of dramatic conflict set within traditional conventions. Albert Camus: Caligula, the Absurd and the response to it; later plays; Camus's failure to find an original dramatic form. Armand Salacrou and social melodrama. The limitations of naturalistic or melodramatic form.

4	The Parisian theatre II: the New Theatre	53
	Experimental productions by Jean Vilar, Jean-Louis Barrault, Roger Blin and others; the small 'art' theatres of Paris. Adamov, Ionesco and Beckett: self-critical methods of New Theatre; links with Modernism in novels, essays, etc; theatre at zero degree; En attendant Godot and pure play; the break with plot and characters; literality: Adamov and Artaud; influence of Artaud; semiotic richness of New Theatre; audience assault in New Theatre. Samuel Beckett: language, voices, shapes, time and the self; Beckett's own productions. Eugene Ionesco: 'tragic farce'; the Surrealist vision; dramatic rhythm and dream reality; mysticism. Arthur Adamov: obsessions and neurosis; literality and the experience of language; the discovery of social reality.
5	The decentralised theatre I: the fifties	87
	Jeanne Laurent and the politics of decentralisation. The new Centres Dramatiques and their directors: André Clavé, Jean Dasté, Maurice Sarrazin, Gaston Baty. Jean Vilar, the Avignon festival and the T.N.P.; contrasts between the Centres and the T.N.P.; Vilar's early achievements. The founders of Théâtre Populaire and their contribution; visit to Paris of the Berliner Ensemble and growth of Brecht's influence on French theatre; Epic theatre: theory and practice; difficulties of adaptation to French habits of acting and staging. Vilar's T.N.P. in the late fifties and early sixties.
6	The decentralised theatre II: Planchon and Adamov	105
	Roger Planchon's theatre group in the early fifties; the discovery of Artaud; the impact of Brecht; the Théâtre de la Comédie and early work with Adamov; Paolo Paoli ; the Théâtre de la Cité: Shakespeare and Molière. Planchon's plays: La Remise , L'Infâme , Le Cochon noir , Gilles de Rais ; his dramatic methods and production techniques; Planchon, the first major dramatist of French rural life; Planchon's Le Tartuffe , first and second versions. 1968, the Villeurbanne discussions and the 'non-public'; the new T.N.P.-Villeurbanne. Adamov's work in the sixties: La Politique des restes ; Off limits ; Planchon's A.A. théâtres d'Adamov . Other productions by Planchon: No man's land , Athalie and Dom Juan ; theatre and the 'non-public': keeping the wound open.
7	The decentralised theatre III: the sixties	139
	Expansion in the sixties: animateurs , Troupes Permanentes and Maisons de la Culture; disillusionment in the late sixties; politicisation and création collective after 1968; the theatres of the Parisian 'red belt'; Jean-Marie Serreau and third world theatre. Playwrights of the sixties and developments in Epic theatre: 1. Aimé

Césaire: general poetic and dramatic methods; La Tragédie du roi Christophe; Serreau's staging of this and Une saison au Congo; Une tempête. 2. Gabriel Cousin: sport, movement and le théâtre populaire; poetry and the nuclear threat: Le Drame du Fukuryu-Maru; L'Aboyeuse et l'automate; Le Cycle du crabe. 3. Armand Gatti: theatre for social change; fragmented characters and the birth of revolutionary consciousness: La Vie imaginaire de l'éboueur Auguste Geai; concentration camps, the nuclear holocaust, and survivors; success and disillusionment: V. comme Vietnam; La Passion du Général Franco banned; extra-theatrical work: the Durruti column and later projects on video etc.; contradictory position of Gatti: poet, dramatist, folk artist, catalyst. Ideas of liberation and participation in the work of all three dramatists.

8 Total theatre

166

Barrault and total theatre; adaptations; Rabelais; the Orsay theatre. Roger Blin: non-imitative theatre; objects as signs; productions of Genet. Genet's youth and novels; his plays: ceremonies depending on audience belief; exaltation and glorification of authority figures; necessary décalage in acting style; Blin's achievement in productions of Les Nègres and Les Paravents: performances calling into question their own reality; foundation in Genet's aesthetic theory and attitude towards death; words, images and power in the plays; relation between symbolic imagination and political reality in Genet's theatre. Jean Vauthier, Jacques Audiberti and Fernando Arrabal: ritual, fantasy and neurosis; plays that have been used by directors in search of total theatre.

9 La création collective

191

The Théâtre du Soleil: Ariane Mnouchkine; origins and early productions; consequences of 1968; improvisation in Les Clowns; 1979: the rebirth of festive theatre; working methods and dramatic form; social organisation and creativity; performance space; particular episodes discussed; evolution of 1993; image and process; Brechtian narrative acting; space and actor-audience relationship; preparation of L'Âge d'or; bio-mechanics and mask work; improvisations and structure; Molière, ou la vie d'un honnête homme: the life of a theatre company; Mephisto: the political responsibility of the actor. The Théâtre de l'Aquarium: uses of documentary material from Marchands de ville to Un Conseil de classe très ordinaire. The Théâtre Populaire de Lorraine; Splendeur et misère de Minette: political allegory; Les Immigrés: the ideology of racism; Les Histoires de l'oncle Jakob: myth and history. Le Grand Magic Circus: from bad taste to comic skill. Adaptations of novels: Catherine by Vitez; David Copperfield by Soleil and Campagnol. Importance of la création collective.

10 Playwrights of the seventies

227

Reduced importance of the author; crisis in arts subsidies; Théâtre Ouvert; Jean-Claude Grumberg: from New Theatre to Epic theatre and back to Naturalism: Amorphe d'Ottenburg; Dreyfus; En r'venant d'Expo; L'Atelier; Edouardo Manet from Les Nonnes to Un Balcon sur les Andes; origins of le théâtre du quotidien; Georges Michel: La Promenade du Dimanche; L'Agression; Arbalètes et vieilles rapières; Un petit nid d'amour; La Ruée vers l'ordre; René Kalisky: Skandalon; Michel Deutsch: Dimanche; La Bonne Vie; L'Entraînement du champion avant la course; Convoi; Jean-Paul Wenzel: Loin d'Hagondange; development of multiple viewpoint in le théâtre du quotidien; Michel Vinaver: the fabric of the everyday; self-conscious reflection on society: Par-dessus bord; Planchon's production; Les Travaux et les jours; A la renverse; quality of Vinaver's writing; success of a new form: the drama of multiple viewpoint.

11 The eighties

256

Renewed expansion led by increased State funding; continuing dominance of the director; improving conditions for playwrights: Théâtre Ouvert and the Central National des Lettres; a new generation of young playwrights; writers of established importance: Beckett; Genet; Claudel; Duras; the Théâtre du Soleil and collaboration between Mnouchkine and Cixous; new work by Vinaver: Portrait d'une femme; L'Emission de télévision; Koltès and Chereau from Combat de nègre et de chiens to Le Retour au désert; conclusion.

Bibliography

281

Historical table of productions

309

Index

321