INTRODUCTION: ASSESSING RISK AND RESILIENCE FACTORS IN MODELS OF DEPRESSION 1

KEITH S. DOBSON AND DAVID J.A. DOZOIS

- The Nature of Major Depression 2
- The Course of Depression 5
- The Nature of Risk 7
- Research Methods for Studying Risk 8
- Conceptual Models for Studying Risk 10
- Preview of this Volume 12

PART I

BIOLOGICAL FACTORS 17

2

GENETIC RISK AND FAMILIAL TRANSMISSION OF DEPRESSION 19

LIZ FORTY, STANLEY ZAMMIT AND NICK CRADDOCK

- Classification/Diagnosis of Depression 20
- Measuring Genetic and Environmental Risk Factors 21
 - Family, Adoption and Twin Studies* 21
- Molecular Genetic Studies 21
 - Linkage Studies* 21

The Familiarity/Heritability of MDD	22
Childhood Depression	24
Heritability, Gender and Depression	24
Heritability and Clinical Characteristics of Major Depression	24
Gene-Environment Interactions	25
Molecular Genetic Studies and MDD	25
Linkage Studies and MDD	25
Linkage Studies, MDD and Comorbidity	26
Candidate Gene Studies and MDD	27
Refining the Phenotype	28
The Reactive/Endogenous Division of MDD	28
Melancholic and Atypical Depression	28
Childbirth and MDD	29
Psychosis and MDD	29
Suicide and MDD	29
Symptom Dimensions and MDD	30
Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD)	30
Treatment Response	30
Future Directions	30

3

ALTERATIONS IN NEURAL STRUCTURES AS RISK FACTORS FOR DEPRESSION 37

RAJAMANNAR RAMASUBBU AND GLENDA MACQUEEN

Neural Structures as Risk Factors	37
Neuroimaging Approaches	38
Neuro-anatomical Correlates of Depression	40
Brain Markers of Vulnerability to Depression	47
Conclusions and Future Perspectives	53

4

NEUROCHEMICAL AND TRANSMITTER MODELS OF DEPRESSION 63

HYMIE ANISMAN, KIM MATHESON AND SHAWN HAYLEY

Monoamine Variations Associated with Stressors	65
Sensitization	66
Genetic Engineering and Behavioral Impairments	67

Studies in Humans: Imaging, Binding and Postmortem Analyses	67
Genetic Links between Serotonin Functioning and Depression	70
Pharmacological Studies	71
Corticotropin Releasing Hormone	71
CRH Receptors	72
CRH in Depression/Suicide	73
HPA Polymorphisms Related to MDD	74
CRH-AVP Interactions	74
Pharmacological Studies	75
Morphological Correlates of Major Depressive Illness	75
Neurogenesis and Depression	76
Growth Factors in Relation to Stressors and Depression	76
Inflammatory Processes Associated with MDD	77
Proactive Effects of Cytokines	79
Cytokines in Relation to Depression in Humans	80
Concluding Comments	81

5

SLEEP DYSREGULATION AND RELATED REGULATORY MODELS 91

ANNE GERMAIN AND MICHAEL E. THASE

Overview of Normal Sleep	92
Control Mechanisms of Normal Sleep	92
Normal Sleep Architecture and Sleep Neurobiology	94
Sleep and Circadian Disturbances in Depression	97
Sleep-focused Models of Depression	100
Circadian and Sleep Disturbances as Risk Factors for Depression	102
Specificity of Sleep Disturbances as Risk Factors for Depression	103
Treatment Implications	104
Directions for Future Theory and Research Development	109

PART II

COGNITIVE FACTORS 119

6

COGNITIVE SCHEMAS, BELIEFS AND ASSUMPTIONS 121

DAVID J.A. DOZOIS AND AARON T. BECK

- Beck's Cognitive Model 122
- The Measurement of Beliefs and Schemas 125
- Requirement for a Vulnerability Factor 126
- Content Sensitivity 127
- Content-Specificity 127
- Cognitive Stability 130
- Studies of "Vulnerable" Populations 132
- Longitudinal Studies of Cognitive Vulnerability 132
- Mechanisms Related to the Development of Core Beliefs/Schemas 133
- Conclusions and Future Directions 135

7

INFORMATION PROCESSING: ATTENTION AND MEMORY 145

RICK E. INGRAM, DANA K. STEIDTMANN
AND STEVEN L. BISTRICKY

- Memory and Risk 147
 - Recall Bias* 147
 - Memory Specificity* 149
- Attention and Risk 151
 - Attentional Affective Bias* 151
 - Attentional Capacity and Allocation* 153
 - Inhibition of Attention* 157
 - Eye Movement Indicators of Attention* 159
 - Thought Suppression* 161
 - Summary of Attention and Risk* 162
- Treatment and Future Directions 163

8

OPTIMISM AND PESSIMISM 171

STEPHEN M. SCHUELLER AND MARTIN E.P. SELIGMAN

- Introduction 171
Expecting the Best: "Dispositional Optimism" more accurately called
"Expectational Optimism" 172
Explaining Events: Explanatory Style 173
Related Constructs: Self-Efficacy and Hope 175
Cognitive Models of Depression 176
From Helplessness to Hopelessness: The Role of Explanatory Style in
Depression 176
Evidence for Pessimism as a Risk Factor for Depression 177
Interventions that Increase Optimism and Lower Depression 182
Benefits of Optimism 184
Building the Positive: Positive Psychology and Optimism 185
The Future of Optimism/Pessimism 190

9

DISPOSITIONAL PESSIMISM ACROSS THE LIFESPAN 195

JOHN R.Z. ABELA, RANDY P. AUERBACH AND MARTIN E.P. SELIGMAN

- Dispositional Optimism 196
Assessing Dispositional Optimism 196
Examining the Prospective Association Between Dispositional Optimism and Depression 197
Adolescents and University Students 197
Older Adults 198
Pregnancy and Childbirth 198
Abortion 199
Cancer 199
Patient-Caregiver Dyads 199
Surgical Outcomes 200
HIV and AIDS 200
Mediating Pathways Through Which Dispositional Optimism Predicts
Depression 201
Explanatory Style 202

Reformulated Learned Helplessness Theory	202
Hopelessness Theory	202
Assessing Explanatory Style	203
Prospective Studies of the Association Between Explanatory Style and Depression	204
University Students	204
Depressed Adult Patients	206
Children and Adolescents	207
Mediating Pathways Through Which Explanatory Style Predicts Depression	208
Relationship Between Dispositional Optimism and Explanatory Style	209
Theoretical Perspectives	210
Empirical Observations	211
Directions for Future Research	211

10

RUMINATIVE RESPONSE STYLE 221

BLAIR E. WISCO AND SUSAN NOLEN-HOEKSEMA

Evidence of Risk for Depression	222
Proposed Mechanisms of Risk	226
Increases in Negative Mood	226
Cognitive Costs of Rumination	228
Motivational Consequences of Rumination	228
Interpersonal Effects of Rumination	228
Specificity of Risk	229
Anxiety Disorders	229
Escapist Behaviors	230
Suicidal Ideation and Behaviors	230
Treatment Implications	230
Directions for Future Research	232

11

NEGATIVE COGNITIVE STYLE 237

LAUREN B. ALLOY, LYN Y. ABRAMSON, JESSICA KEYSER,
RACHEL K. GERSTEIN AND LOUISA G. SYLVIA

Description of Negative Cognitive Style	237
Mechanisms by Which Negative Cognitive Style Increases Risk for Depression	239

Empirical Support for Negative Cognitive Style as a Risk Factor for Depression	241
Prospective Research on Cognitive Vulnerability to Depression	241
CVD Project Results	244
Developmental Antecedents of Negative Cognitive Styles	249
Do Modeling and Parental Inferential Feedback Contribute to the Development of Negative Cognitive Styles?	250
Do General Parenting Styles Contribute to the Development of Negative Cognitive Styles?	250
Does Childhood Maltreatment Contribute to the Development of Negative Cognitive Styles?	251
Negative Cognitive Styles: Implications for Resilience to Depression, Treatment, and Prevention	252
Adaptive Inferential Feedback as a Buffer Against Depression Among Cognitively Vulnerable Individuals	252
Treatment and Prevention	254
Directions for Future Research	255

12

SOCIAL PROBLEM SOLVING AS A RISK FACTOR FOR DEPRESSION 263

ARTHUR M. NEZU, CHRISTINE MAGUTH NEZU AND MELISSA A. CLARK

What Is Social Problem Solving?	263
How Does Social Problem Solving Serve as a Risk Factor for Depression?	265
Problem-Solving Component Processes and Depression	269
Depression, Rumination, and Social Problem Solving	270
What is the Empirical Support for Problem Solving to be a Depressogenic Risk Factor?	271
Social Problem Solving and Depression	271
SPS as a Moderator of the Stress–Depression Association	274
Problem-Solving Therapy for Depression: Treatment Implications	274
Are SPS Deficits Specific to Depression?	279
Future Directions	279

PART III

SOCIAL FACTORS 287

13

THE ROOTS OF DEPRESSION IN EARLY ATTACHMENT EXPERIENCES 289

GREG MORAN, HEIDI NEUFELD BAILEY AND CAREY ANNE DEOLIVEIRA

- Attachment and Later Depression: Conceptual Arguments and Existing Evidence 291
- Attachment: Origins, Correlates, and Developmental Implications 294
 - Individual Differences in Attachment* 295
 - Trauma, Fear, and Disorganized Attachment* 296
 - The Development of Representations* 297
 - Attachment and Later Psychopathology* 299
- How the cognitive and Interpersonal Consequences of Early Attachment
Experiences May Affect Resilience and Vulnerability to
Depression 300
 - Specific Cognitive and Interpersonal Vulnerabilities Associated with Particular Patterns of Attachment* 301
- Areas for Further Research at the Intersection of Attachment and Risk for Depression 305
 - How Are Cognitive Schemas Activated?* 306
 - Cognitive Schemas and Emotions* 307
 - Adult Attachment Representations and Interpersonal Risks for
Depression* 308
 - Differences in Underlying Vulnerability to Depression: Implications for Therapy* 309
- Concluding Comments 310

14

LIFE EVENTS AND HASSLES 317

KATE L. HARKNESS

- Assessing and Defining Stressful Life Events 318
 - Life Event Assessment: Daily Hassles* 319
 - Life Event Assessment: Interview-Based Approaches* 320

Life Events and Depression	321
Life Events and Syndrome Specificity	323
Life Events and Specificity to Depression vs. Anxiety	323
Life Stress and the Melancholic vs. Non-Melancholic Distinction in Depression	324
Stress Sensitization and Depression	328
Genetic Vulnerability to Stress Sensitization	329
Childhood Adversity Vulnerability to Stress Sensitization	331
Cognitive and Personality Vulnerability to Stress Sensitivity	332
Summary	334
Conclusions	335

15

PARENTAL PSYCHOPATHOLOGY AND PARENTING STYLE ATTACHMENT AS RISK FACTORS OF DEPRESSION 343

CECILIA A. ESSAU AND SATOKO SASAGAWA

Introduction	343
Parental Psychopathology and Depression in Offspring	344
Top-Down Studies	344
Bottom-Up Studies	345
Clinical Features of Parental Psychopathology and Children's Depression	348
Parental Depression and Children's Psychosocial Impairment and Course of Depression	350
Parenting Styles and Depression	351
Moderators of Parental Depression and Children's Outcome	353
Studies of Depressed Parents	353
Observation Studies	354
Single or Multi-factorial Model of Risk for Depression	355
Conclusions and Future Directions	356
Specificity	356
Genetic and Environmental Effects	356
Protective or Resiliency Factors	357
A Focus on Prevention	357

16

MARRIAGE AND RELATIONSHIP ISSUES 363

MARK A. WHISMAN AND ROSELINDE KAISER

- Relationship Functioning and Depression 364
 - Global Evaluation of Marital Discord* 364
 - Marital Processes* 369
- Specificity of the Association between Marital Functioning and Depression 372
- Treatment Implications 373
 - Couples Therapy* 373
- Directions for Future Theory and Research Development 376
- Conclusion 379

17

LOW SOCIAL SUPPORT AND MAJOR DEPRESSION: RESEARCH, THEORY AND METHODOLOGICAL ISSUES 385

BRIAN LAKEY AND ARIKA CRONIN

- Social Support Theory, Measurement, and Methods 386
 - Social Support Theory* 386
 - Social Support Measurement* 386
 - Methods for Testing Stress and Coping Social Support Theory* 388
- Empirical Research on Social Support and Depression 389
 - Cross-sectional Studies of Social Support and Depression* 389
 - Prospective Studies of Social Support and Depression* 390
 - Studies of Depression Remission Following Treatment* 394
- Implications for Social Support Theory and Research 396
 - Other Theoretical Approaches* 397
- Are Prospective Studies Appropriate For Testing Alternative Theories? 399
 - Alternative Research Designs* 400
- Summary and Conclusions 403

18

STRESS GENERATION AND DEPRESSION 409

CONSTANCE HAMMEN AND
JOSEPHINE H. SHIH

- Defining the Risk Factor 409
 - General Models of Person-Environment Transactions* 410
- Hypothesized Mechanism of Action 411
 - Effects of Prior and Current Depression on Stress Generation* 411
 - Effects of Clinical Factors on Stress Generation* 414
 - Effects of Other Vulnerability Factors on Stress Generation* 414
- Onset vs. Recurrence of depression 418
 - Role of Self-generated (Dependent) Stress on Depression* 418
- Specificity of Stress Generation in Relation to Depression 420
- Implications for Resilience and Treatment 422
- Conclusions and Directions for Future Research 423

19

REASSURANCE SEEKING AND NEGATIVE FEEDBACK SEEKING 429

KATHERINE A. TIMMONS AND THOMAS E. JOINER, JR.

- Risk Factor Models 430
- Excessive Reassurance Seeking 431
 - ERS and Rejection* 432
 - ERS and Depression* 433
 - ERS: Future Directions* 436
- Negative Feedback Seeking 437
 - NFS and Rejection* 438
 - NFS and Depression* 440
 - NFS: Future Directions* 441
- Reassurance and NFS: Integrations and Future Directions 441
 - An Integrative Model of Risk for Rejection* 441
 - Reassurance and NFS as Maintenance Factors* 442
 - Interpersonal Risk Factors for Depression?* 443

20

AVOIDANCE 447

NICOLE D. OTTENBREIT AND KEITH S. DOBSON

Introduction 447

The Construct of Avoidance 447

Literature Review 448

Theories That Posit a Role for Avoidance in the Context of Depression 448

Empirical Investigations of the Relationship Between Avoidance and Depression 454

*Conceptual and Methodological Issues in the Study of Avoidance and
Depression 458*

Commonalities and Distinctions Between Avoidance and Other Concepts 462

Directions for Future Research and Clinical Implications 464
