

CONTENTS

	Acknowledgments	ix
	Introduction	i
1	Buber's Hermeneutic Horizon	16
2	The Anthology and the Jewish Renaissance	29
	An Attempt at Definition	29
	Anthology as a Jewish Form	31
	The Jewish Library Reconfigured	36
	Buber's Anthologies and German Romantic Nationalism	37
3	Zionist Anthologies	40
	Moderate Modernism: Hayyim Nahman Bialik's "Ingathering"	40
	Between Eastern Hebrew Nationalism and Western Jewish Renewal	44
	Berdycewsky's Sefer Hasidim	47
4	In Search of Collaborators	55
	The Role of Marcus Ehrenpreis	55
	Micha Josef Berdycewsky: An Ambivalent Collaborator	56
5	The Galician Circle of Elusive Collaborators	60
	Shmuel Yosef Agnon: An Anthology Shelved	60
	Mordekhai Ben-Yehzekel: The Folklorist as Anthologist	62
	Samuel Abba Horodezky: A Silent Collaborator	67

6	Ahad Ha'am's Theory of Culture Revised Language and the Jewish Renaissance 73	70
7	Sprachkritik : The Crisis of Perception	76
8	Jewish Culture: Between Mystical Aesthetics and Lebensphilosophie Excursus on Ecstasy and Temporality 107	94
9	A Phenomenology of Hasidic Mysticism Preparing the Readers: Basic Religious Ideas 116 Hitlahavut —On Ecstatic Immediacy 125 'Avodah —On Mystical Self-Sacrifice 131 Kawwanah —On Redemptive Devotion 136 Shiflut —On Relation 146	116
	Conclusion	156
	Appendix: Buber's Sources for Die Legende des Baalschem	164
	Notes	169
	Bibliography	217
	Index	228