Contents

Preface vii
Acknowledgements xv

1. Semiotic Foundations of Text Theory 1

2. Meaning and Use of Sentence Connectives in Natural Language 15
   - 2.1 Two Strategies for the Description of Verbal Communication 16
   - 2.2 The Monism of Meaning 17
   - 2.3 The Monism of Use 18
   - 2.4 The Identification of Meaning and Use 19
   - 2.5 The Use of Meanings 21
   - 2.6 Meaning versus Suggestion 24
   - 2.7 Sentence Connectives: Maximization of Meaning 29
   - 2.8 Sentence Connectives: Minimization of Meaning 35
   - 2.9 The Duality of Semantic and Pragmatic Interpretation 41

3. Iconicity in Syntax: The Natural Order of Attributes 49
   - 3.1 Iconicity in Language Use and in the Language System 49
   - 3.2 Syntactic Aspects of Attribute Order 52
   - 3.3 Semantic Aspects of Attribute Order 61
   - 3.4 Pragmatic Aspects of Attribute Order 72
   - 3.5 The Role of Iconicity in Attribute Order 77

4. Types of Dialogue: The Pragmatic Interpretation of Syntax in Discourse 87
   - 4.1 Microstructures 88
   - 4.2 The Comment Test and the Deletion Procedure 93
   - 4.3 The Construction of Complex Information in Discourse 95

4.4 Grammar and the Psychology of Communication 101
4.4.1 Degree of Information and Competence of Judgement 102
4.4.2 Communicative Commitment 102
4.4.3 Intellectual Activity 103
4.4.4 Integration of New Information 104
4.5 Classifying Types of Dialogue 105
4.5.1 Active Dialogue 105
4.5.2 Reactive Dialogue 106
4.5.3 Direct Dialogue 108

5. Poetic Communication versus Literary Language – or: The Linguistic Fallacy in Poetics 113
5.1 Is Poetics Part of Linguistics? 113
5.2 Foundations of Communication 115
5.3 Poetic Communication 118
5.3.1 Poetic Use of Language 120
5.3.2 Aesthetic Code versus Literary Style 122
5.4 The Linguistic Fallacy in Poetics 125

6. Structuralism in the Interpretation of Poetry – Text Description and Reader Response: Baudelaire's Les chats 128
6.1 The Concept of Equivalence as an Analytical Instrument 131
6.2 The Correlation of the Equivalence Classes 138
6.3 The Analysis Procedure 140
6.4 The Synthesis 143
6.5 The Description of the Semantic Level 145
6.6 Text Description versus Analysis of Reader Response 148

7. Linguistic Tools of Literary Interpretation: Two Centuries of Goethe-Criticism 161
7.1 The Problem 161
7.2 Enlightenment and Sentimentalism 164
7.3 Romanticism 164
7.4 The Biedermeier Period 166
7.5 Late Romanticism 168
7.6 Realism 169
7.7 Impressionism 170
7.8 Symbol-Oriented Interpretation 171
7.9 Summary 179

8. Semiotic Paradoxes in Language Use, with Particular Reference to Laurence Sterne's Tristram Shandy 187
8.1 Introduction 187
8.2 Paradox and Antinomy 188
8.2.1 The Antinomy of Predication 189
8.2.2 The Antinomy of Truth 190
8.3 Semantic Levels 191
8.4 Semiotic Paradoxes 192
8.5 Sterne's Autobiography 194
8.6 Types of Semiotic Paradoxes in Tristram Shandy 197
8.7 Conclusion 201

9. Discourse as a Means to Enlightenment: Two Theories of Rational Communication 205

Bibliography 223
Index of Names 235
Index of Subjects 239
Index of Examples 257