

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
I. Describing the Verse Epistle	9
Formal, Stylistic, and Paratextual Elements	12
Textual References to Letter-Writing	29
Prose and Verse Epistles	33
Contemporary Theories of the Verse Epistle	44
II. A Diachronic Perspective of the Verse Epistle in the Fifteenth Century	59
Eustache Deschamps and Christine de Pizan	61
Charles d'Orléans and François Villon	75
Fifteenth-Century Rhétoriciens: George Chastellain, Jean Castel, Jean Robertet, Henri Baude, and Jean Molinet	85
III. Social Context and the Epistolary Practice at the Turn of the Sixteenth Century	107
Early Sixteenth-Century Rhétoriciens: Jean d'Auton, Jean Lemaire, Guillaume Cretin, Jean Bouchet, and Jean Marot.	110
Jean Picart and His Circle of Correspondents	127

Contents (cont'd)

IV. Fleshing Out the Poetic Persona: Clement Marot and the Familiar Epistle	135
Marot, His Predecessors, and the Preeminence of the Poet's Perspective	139
The Effects of the Shortened Line on Theme and Voice	159
The Coq-à-l'âne	165
V. The Early Sixteenth-Century Love Epistle and the Élégie marotique	171
The Classical and Courtly Origins of the Love Epistle	172
The Early Sixteenth-Century Love Epistle	176
The Élégie marotique	205
Afterword	217
Notes	221
Selected Bibliography	249
Index	259