

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

- 0 Introduction: Nothing and the twentieth century 1
 - Odysseus: Outis 3
 - Khôra*: Socrates: Knowing nothing 5
 - Much ado about nothing 8
 - Narratives of nothing 25

- 1 Theorizing nothing 29
 - Zero 29
 - Nothing and being: Heidegger and Sartre 38
 - Nothing and narrative: Nietzsche, Derrida, Bakhtin, and Kristeva 47

- 2 Akaky Akakievich and Bartleby 59
 - Akaky Akakievich 62
 - Bartleby 69

- 3 “Working in a Void”: Vladimir Nabokov and the semiotics of nothing 75
 - Muzhiks* working in a void 75
 - The otherworld and loss 77
 - The Real Life of Sebastian Knight*: Reality as nothing and the aesthetics of failure 81
 - “Signs and Symbols”: Patterning and nothing 95

- 4 Samuel Beckett: Immanence, language, nothing 105
 - Nothing happens, more than once 105
 - Critical approaches to Beckett and nothing 107

Aesthetics of lessness	110
Beckettian immanence	112
Molloy : Questing immanence	116
Aesthetics of immanent nothing	130
5 Victor Pelevin's void and the post-Soviet condition	135
Pelevin's postmodernism	135
Engineering the human soul	138
Pelevin's divine absurdity: The void	141
Nihilistic nothing in Generation "P"	143
Sacred nothing in Chapaev and Void and The Sacred Book of the Werewolf	157
Conclusion: Nothing as the transcendental signified	171
Bibliography	175
Index	189