
Contents

Series Foreword	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	xi

Part One: Intensive Supervision: Examining and Evaluating Policies and Practices

Chapter One. Intensive Supervision: Why Bother? Todd R. Clear and Anthony A. Braga	3
Chapter Two. Assignment to Intensive Supervision: An Assessment of Offender Classification and Subjective Override in the State of Idaho J. Arthur Beyer	19
Chapter Three. Intensive Probation in Texas G. Mark Jones and Terry L. Wells	41
Chapter Four. Examining the Factors Related to Success or Failure with Felony Probationers: A Study of Intensive Supervision Edward J. Latessa and Jill A. Gordon	63

Part Two: Targeting Special Offender Populations

Chapter Five. Intensive Supervision for Drug-Involved Probationers Christine Curtis, Darlann Hootor, and Susan Pennell	87
Chapter Six. Drug Abuse Treatment and Community Corrections: Findings from the Kentucky Substance Abuse Program Gennaro F. Vito	123

Chapter Seven. Community Corrections for Spouse Abusers Sue Mahan and Lori Leigh Osta	137
Chapter Eight. Electronic Monitoring of Juvenile Offenders: The Lake County, Indiana, Experience Sudipto Roy	159
Part Three: New Models for Community Supervision
Chapter Nine. Punishment, Probation, and the Problem of Community Control: A Randomized Field Experiment on Absconder Location Strategies Faye S. Taxman and James M. Byrne	171
Chapter Ten. Reintegrating the Criminal Offender Through Community-Based Vocational Networks Thomas C. Tomlinson	205
Chapter Eleven. The Probation Mentor Home Program: An Evaluation Chinita A. Heard	243
Chapter Twelve. Diversion Center Operations: An Assessment of Staffing Needs Damon D. Camp	255
Contributors	277