

CONTENTS

List of Tables	xi
Preface	xiii
Introduction	1
1. The German Automobile Industry and the Daimler-Motoren-Gesellschaft: The Mercedes Mythos	7
Daimler Among the Swabians	8
The German Automobile Industry: Preliminary Observations	13
The Mercedes Mythos	15
The Age of Berge and Kaulla	19
Daimler's Controlling Bodies	22
2. Work and Workers at Daimler, 1903–1914	25
Types of Workers and Machines	26
Daimler's Skilled Workers and the Production Processes	29
Formers	31
Smiths	32
Turners	33
Fitters	34
The Toolmaking Shop and Outfitting Office: The Design of Production	35

The Masters	38
The Special Machines and Their Tenders	39
Other Skilled Workers	40
The Factory Regime	41
The Verein Study and the Workers at Daimler	46
Wages, Age, Seniority	48
Origins and Education	49
Work-Day and Pay-Day	51
 3. The Workers' Movement at Daimler, 1903–1914	 61
The Labor Movement at Daimler	63
Organizing Auto Workers	63
1910: A Lockout Threat, Overtime, and Work Rules	68
1911: Mechanics and Piece-rates	72
The Lockout of 1911: Resistance to Overtime and Firings	74
Interlude: "Luginsland" & Houses for Daimler Workers	76
 4. World War I at the Daimler-Motoren-Gesellschaft	 83
Building the Engines of War	85
Procuring Workers and Producing for War	92
Mercedes' Sisters: Women at DMG	96
Sindelfingen	100
Prices, Profits, and Patriotism: The Daimler Affair	102
Daimler's Wartime Profits	112
Daimler's "Militarization" and the Battle of the Spare Parts	114
The Reinvigoration of Class Conflict	117
Industrial Relations	118
June 1918: Open Defiance	126
Radicals at Daimler: Leaflets Against the War	134
 5. Red Star Over Mercedes: Daimler Workers and the Revolution	 137
Demobilization and Reform in Untertuerkheim	144
The "United Proletariat" and the Workers' Movement	151
Gruppenfabrikation : Toward the Reorganization of Production	160
The First Collective Bargaining Agreement	164
Wages, 1919–1920	167
The Revolution at Daimler	169
 6. The End of the Revolutionary Era in Untertuerkheim	 171
1920: Working to a New Tempo	172
The Lockout of 1920 and Its Consequences	184
Stabilization and Rationalization	207

7. Crisis and New Order, 1929–1945: National Socialism and a
Model Company	215
The Mercedes Reich	218
The Workers in the New Order at Daimler-Benz	223
Nazis, Industry, and Labor: Accommodation or Opposition?	231
Genshagen: Motors and War Crimes	238
Rzeszow (Reichshof) and Vienna: Following the Flag	245
Stuttgart-Untertuerkheim	249
Wartime Tests: The Bombing and the Battle of the Mercedes
Succession	253
Conclusions	259
Notes	273
Bibliography	325
Index	347

TABLES

5.1 Wage Goals at DMG According to the 1919 Pact	166
6.1 The Betriebsrat Election, March 1920	176
6.2 Daimler Workers Older & Younger than Age 25, 1920	199
6.3 Daimler Workers According to Main Categories, 1920	200
6.4 Method of Payment at DMG, 1920	200
6.5 Wages at Daimler, 1920	201
6.6 Average Hourly Wages at Major Factories in Stuttgart, 1925	208
6.7 Daimler-Benz's Economic Performance, 1926–1928	213
7.1 The Daimler-Benz Aktien-Gesellschaft, 1926–1944	220
7.2 Wages and Working Hours at Daimler-Benz, 1929–1937, 1940	226
7.3 Daimler-Benz's Wage Groups, 1941; Level of Piece-wages for Male Workers According to Wage Group	228
7.4 Daimler-Benz's Performance, 1932–1940: The Company's Report	229
7.5 The Daimler-Benz Empire, 1942–1945	230
Appendix 1: Quarters for Foreign Workers at Daimler-Benz, Stuttgart-Untertuerkheim	267
Appendix 2: Nationality, Sex, and Age of Foreign Workers at Daimler-Benz, Stuttgart-Untertuerkheim	270
Appendix 3: Categories of Foreign Workers at Daimler-Benz Factories in Germany, 1941–1943	271

TABLES

1.1 Auto Production in Germany and the U.S., 1913 & 1925	14
1.2 Production at the Daimler-Motoren-Gesellschaft, 1903–1926	16
1.3 Daimler Cars, 1904–1924	17
2.1 Daimler's Machinery Acquisitions 1910, 1911, 1914	28
2.2 Wages vs. Production and Sales at DMG, 1910–1914	31
2.3–2.9 The Findings of the Study of the Verein fuer Sozialpolitik (1909): Fritz Schumann, Die Arbeiter der Daimler-Motoren-Gesellschaft , 1911	56–59
4.1 Largest German Producers of Airplane Motors, 1914–1919	87
4.2 Production of Airplane Motors at Daimler, 1914–1918	89
4.3 Daimler's Production of Vehicles for the Ground War	90
4.4 The Workforces at Untertuerkheim and Sindelfingen	93
4.5 DMG's War-time Performance—Two Assessments	113
4.6 Absenteeism at Daimler-Untertuerkheim, 7/3– 8/2 1918	131