

Contents

I. AN ACT APPROACH

1. What Is Acceptance and Commitment Therapy?	1
Steven C. Hayes, Kirk D. Strosahl, Kara Bunting, Michael Twohig, and Kelly G. Wilson
The ACT Theory of Change: Acquisition of Psychological Flexibility	5
What Is ACT?	13
ACT and the Third Wave of Behavior Therapy	13
Philosophy and Basic Science Foundation	18
The ACT Theory of Psychopathology: Psychological Rigidity .	24
What Is ACT?	29
2. An ACT Primer: Core Therapy Processes, Intervention Strategies, and Therapist Competencies	31
Kirk D. Strosahl, Steven C. Hayes, Kelly G. Wilson and Elizabeth V. Gifford
Moving from FEAR to ACT	32
The Six Core Clinical Processes of ACT	32
Competencies of the ACT Therapist	51
Improving Your Skills as an ACT Therapist	57
Conclusion	58
3. ACT Case Formulation	59
Steven C. Hayes, Kirk D. Strosahl, Jayson Luoma, Alethea A. Varra, and Kelly G. Wilson

Analyze the Scope and Nature of the Problem	61
Motivation	64
Factors Contributing to Psychological Inflexibility	66
Factors Contributing to Psychological Flexibility	67
Select a Set of Treatment Goals and Associated Interventions . .	68

II. ACT WITH BEHAVIOR PROBLEMS

4. ACT with Affective Disorders	77
Robert D. Zettle
Formulation	79
Clinical Interventions	85
Clinical Considerations	99
Conclusion	102
5. ACT with Anxiety Disorders	103
Susan M. Orsillo, Lizabeth Roemer, Jennifer Block-Lerner, Chad LeJeune, and James D. Herbert
Formulation	106
Clinical Approach	110
Disorder Specific Clinical Considerations	125
General Clinical Considerations	130
Conclusion	132
6. ACT with Posttraumatic Stress Disorder	133
Alethea A. Varra and Victoria M. Follette
Formulation	135
Clinical Interventions	140
Clinical Considerations	151
Summary	152
7. ACT for Substance Abuse and Dependence	153
Kelly G. Wilson and Michelle R. Byrd
Case Conceptualization	154
ACT Intervention Strategies	157
Special Clinical Considerations	178
Conclusion	183

8. ACT with the Seriously Mentally Ill	185
Patricia Bach
Formulation	187
Clinical Interventions	190
Clinical Considerations	205
Conclusions	208
9. ACT with the Multi-Problem Patient	209
Kirk D. Strosahl
Case Conceptualization	211
Clinical Intervention	218
Clinical Considerations	242
Conclusion	244
 III. ACT WITH SPECIAL POPULATIONS, SETTINGS, AND METHODS
10. ACT with Children, Adolescents, and Their Parents	249
Amy R. Murrell, Lisa W. Coyne, and Kelly G. Wilson
Assessment and Case Conceptualization	249
ACT Clinical Interventions	251
Clinical Considerations	266
Summary	270
11. ACT for Stress	275
Frank W. Bond
An ACT Conceptualization of Stress: Context over Content . . .	277
An ACT Intervention Program for Stress	278
Clinical Considerations	291
Conclusion	292
12. ACT in Medical Settings	295
Patricia Robinson, Jennifer Gregg, JoAnne Dahl, and Tobias Lundgren
An ACT-HC Model	296
ACT Interventions	303
Recommendations for Training Primary Care Providers	313

13. ACT with Chronic Pain Patients	315
Patricia Robinson, Rikard K. Wicksell, and Gunnar L. Olsson
Case Formulation	317
Clinical Interventions	322
Clinical Considerations	337
ACT With Pediatric Chronic Pain	339
Clinical Interventions	340
14. ACT in Group Format	347
Robyn D. Walser and Jacqueline Pistorello
Previous Studies of ACT Adapted to the Group Format	347
Advantages of Applying ACT in a Group Format	348
Considerations Prior to Starting an ACT Group	350
Conducting ACT Groups	354
Clinical Interventions: Core ACT Areas and Application of Techniques in Group	363
Conclusion	372
References	373
Index	391