

Contents

List of illustrations	vii
List of contributors	viii
Preface	ix

Part I The framework

1 Rights and justice in the environment debate Brenda Almond	3
2 Just ecological principles? Joy A. Palmer	21
3 The interrelationship of population and environment John I. Clarke	34

Part II Intergenerational issues

4 The environment and justice for future generations Barry S. Gower	49
5 Nature, culture and history I. G. Simmons	59
6 Population prospects with special reference to the environment Léon Tabah	72

Part III International issues

7 International justice and the environment Steven Luper-Foy	91
8 Power, control and intrusion, with particular reference to Antarctica Robert Prosser	108

- 9 Justice and order in international relations: the global environment 121
James P. Barber and Anna K. Dickson

Part IV Interspecies issues

- 10 Other species and moral reason 137
David E. Cooper
- 11 Animal farming and the environment 149
Alan T. Durning and Holly B. Brough
- 12 Barriers to fair treatment of non-human life 165
Andrew Johnson
- Bibliography* 180
Index 189

Illustrations

Figure 1	An ecological framework: the biosphere	29
Table 1	Growth in population and energy use, 1870–1986	63
Table 2	Human appropriation of net primary productivity in the 1980s	65
Table 3	Population and longevity: proportion of years lived	66
Table 4	Environmental impact as a function of longevity and energy use	66