

CONTENTS

Preface	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xv
List of Figures	xvii

PART I: THEORETICAL ASPECTS OF BI-NATIONAL, HORIZONTAL GROUPS

Introduction	3
Chapter 1: Definition and Characteristics of Bi-National, Horizontal Groups	5
1 Definition and justification of the commonly used terminology	5
1.1 Definition	5
1.2 Justification of the term “bi-national, horizontal group”	5
1.3 The term “transnational enterprise”	8
2 Overview of the characteristics of bi-national, horizontal groups	8
2.1 Co-operating partners being independent, private companies of approximately equal economic size	8
2.1.1 Legal independence of co-operating partners	8
2.1.2 Co-operating partners being private companies	9
2.1.3 Co-operating partners being of approximately equal economic size	9
2.2 Co-operating partners having different nationalities	12
2.3 Existence of a co-operation agreement	13
2.4 Creation of a single economic enterprise	15
2.4.1 Integration of all economic (core) activities	15
2.4.2 Central management	16
2.4.3 Equal (or proportional) division of group profits	19
Chapter 2: Reasons for Bi-National, Horizontal Group Formation	21
1 Introduction	21

Structuring International Co-operation Between Enterprises

2	Economic theories that attempt to explain international external growth in general and bi-national, horizontal group formation in particular	21
2.1	Internationalization as a rational choice	22
2.2	Internationalization as a reaction to changes in the economic environment	24
2.2.1	The 1960s and 1970s: emergence of multi-nationals	24
2.2.2	The 1980s: loose co-operation agreements	25
2.3	Internationalization of EC enterprises as a response to EC liberalization efforts	26
3	Specific economic reasons for bi-national, horizontal group formation	26
3.1	Synergetic effects	27
3.2	Economies of scale and scope	28
3.3	Market position motivations	28
3.4	Other motivations	29
4	Legal factors to be considered in selecting bi-national, horizontal group formation	30
4.1	Advantages of bi-national, horizontal group formation in comparison with some other concentration and co-operation techniques	30
4.1.1	The legal merger	31
4.1.2	Techniques of control acquisition	32
4.1.3	Direct transfer of capital goods and economic activities	33
4.1.4	Corporate joint ventures	34
4.1.5	New EC forms	36
4.1.6	Simple contractual co-operation techniques	38
4.1.7	Comparative table	39
4.2	Maintenance of the legal independence of, and establishing legal equality between, the co-operating partners	39
4.2.1	Legal independence of the partners	40
4.2.2	Legal equality of the partners	43

Chapter 3: Legal Techniques for the Formation of Bi-National, Horizontal Groups

45

1	General	45
1.1	Legal techniques for the formation of bi-national, horizontal groups as a function of the economic purposes of the co-operating partners	45
1.2	Classification of the legal techniques	47
2	Specific techniques	48
2.1	Entanglement of share ownership	48
2.1.1	At the level of the parent companies	48

Contents

2.1.2	At the level of the operating subsidiaries	52
2.2	Central group management	55
2.2.1	Identically composed boards of directors (interlocked directorships)	56
2.2.2	Co-ordinating committees	57
2.2.3	The subholding board ensuring a single group policy	57
2.3	Possibilities of substituting the techniques discussed for each other; relation between them	57
2.3.1	Means of equalizing group profits	58
2.3.2	Unification of the group management	62
2.3.3	General outlook of the bi-national, horizontal group	62
Chapter 4: Operational and Socio-Cultural Integration Problems Involved in Bi-National, Horizontal Group Formation		65
1	Introduction	65
2	Problems in connection with achieving central management	66
2.1	Parity composition of administrative bodies	66
2.2	Implementation of central senior management decisions at lower management levels	66
2.3	Attempts by one partner to dominate the co-operation	67
3	Problems in connection with achieving the purposes of the co-operation	68
4	Company cultural and managerial differences	69
4.1	Differences in company culture	69
4.2	Differences in procedures	70
4.3	Differences in managerial styles	70
5	Accountancy differences	71
6	Nationalistic problems	72
6.1	Public authorities	72
6.2	Constituent elements of the corporation	73
6.2.1	Employees	74
6.2.2	Shareholders	74
6.3	Consumers	74
7	Conclusions	75

PART 2: CASE STUDIES

Introduction	79
Chapter 5: Success Stories	81
1 Introduction	81

Structuring International Co-operation Between Enterprises

2	Unilever	82
2.1	Origin of Unilever	82
2.1.1	The "Unic-Group"	82
2.1.2	The Lever Brothers Group	83
2.1.3	Unilever	83
2.2	Economic comments	84
2.2.1	Co-operation between the two companies: theoretical approach	84
2.2.2	The Unilever group: general objectives	85
2.3	Legal structure	85
2.3.1	Identically composed boards of directors and the equalization agreement	85
2.3.2	Other clauses of the co-operation agreement	86
2.4	Further analysis of Unilever's organization	86
2.4.1	General	86
2.4.2	Further extension of the Unilever structure	88
2.5	Mechanisms of equalizing shareholdings in both parent companies	91
2.5.1	The equalization agreement	91
2.5.2	Other mechanisms guaranteeing the equality of both parent companies	92
2.6	Unilever strategy	92
2.6.1	The importance of a common strategy with a view to co-operation	92
2.6.2	Unilever strategy	92
2.6.3	Unilever financial strategy	93
2.7	Cultural factors	94
2.8	Financial considerations	94
3	Royal Dutch/Shell	95
3.1	The origin of Royal Dutch/Shell (RD/S)	95
3.1.1	Royal Dutch	95
3.1.2	Shell	95
3.1.3	The origin of RD/S	96
3.2	The co-operation agreement	97
3.3	RD/S organization	97
3.3.1	RD/S group structure	97
3.3.2	RD/S management	99
3.4	RD/S share valuation	100
3.5	RD/S policy	100
3.5.1	Sector strategy	100
3.5.2	Profits	101
3.6	Cultural factors	101
3.7	Final considerations	101
4	Consideration of Unilever and RD/S	101
4.1	Introduction	101
4.2	Macro-economic environment	102
4.3	Micro-economic characteristics	102
4.3.1	Structure	102

Contents

	4.3.2	Co-operation principles	103
5	Asea Brown Boveri		103
	5.1	Introduction	103
	5.2	Asea and Brown Boveri before the co-operation agreement	104
	5.2.1	Asea	104
	5.2.2	Brown Boveri	104
	5.3	The electrotechnical industry in Europe	105
	5.3.1	Fragmentation and overcapacity	105
	5.3.2	Research and development expenses	105
	5.3.3	Need for restructuring	106
	5.4	Origin of Asea Brown Boveri (ABB)	106
	5.5	ABB organization	107
	5.5.1	Decentralized organizational structure	107
	5.5.2	Legal structure	108
	5.6	ABB strategy	109
	5.7	Cultural factors	111
	5.7.1	Resistance from the authorities	111
	5.7.2	Resistance from employees, unions and shareholders	111
	5.7.3	Business culture problems	111
	5.8	Final comments	111
6	Amev AG (Fortis)		112
	6.1	Introduction	112
	6.2	Outlooks of AG and Amev before the co-operation	112
	6.2.1	Assurances Générales (AG)	112
	6.2.2	Amev NV	112
	6.3	Meso-economic aspects: the banking and insurance sector	113
	6.3.1	Fading borders	113
	6.3.2	Blurring of the distinction between banking and insurance	114
	6.4	Origin of Amev AG (Fortis)	114
	6.5	Legal structure	114
	6.6	Shareholder structure	115
	6.7	Group management	117
	6.7.1	Executive board	117
	6.7.2	Supervisory board	117
	6.7.3	Co-ordinating committee	118
	6.8	Results of the co-operation	118
	6.8.1	Product diversification	118
	6.8.2	Geographical expansion	119
	6.9	Final comments	119
7	Elsevier Reed		119
	7.1	Introduction	119
	7.2	Origin of the co-operation	119
	7.2.1	Elsevier and Reed before the co-operation	119
	7.2.2	The co-operation agreement	121

7.3	Legal structure of the co-operation	122
7.3.1	Company structure	122
7.3.2	Equal treatment for the parent companies' shareholders	123
7.4	Group management	126
7.5	Social and cultural factors	127
7.6	Results	127
Chapter 6: Failed Bi-National, Horizontal Groups		129
1	Introduction	129
2	Agfa Gevaert	129
2.1	Introduction	129
2.2	Origin of the economic merger	130
2.3	Integration process	132
2.3.1	Research and development	132
2.3.2	Distribution	132
2.3.3	Marketing	133
2.3.4	Financial policy	133
2.3.5	Production	133
2.4	Legal integration structure	133
2.5	Group policy	135
2.6	Problems caused by the integration	136
2.6.1	Cultural problems	136
2.6.2	Nationalism	136
2.7	The end of the bi-national, horizontal group	137
3	Dunlop Pirelli	139
3.1	Introduction	139
3.2	Origin of the co-operation	139
3.3	Legal structure of the co-operation	141
3.4	Group management	143
3.5	Problems during the co-operation	143
3.5.1	Co-ordination problems	143
3.5.2	Nationalistic resistance from the partners	144
4	Fokker VFW	144
4.1	Introduction	144
4.2	Origin of the co-operation	145
4.3	Reasons for co-operating	145
4.4	Legal form of the co-operation	146
4.5	Management of the co-operation	147
4.6	Problems during the co-operation	148
5	Hoogovens Hoesch	149
5.1	Introduction	149
5.2	Origin of the co-operation	150
5.3	Legal structure of the co-operation	152
5.3.1	Company structure	152
5.3.2	Creation of a central management	154
5.3.3	Other conditions of the agreement	155

Contents

5.3.4	Schematic presentation	155
5.4	Problems during the co-operation	156
6	De Generale Bankmaatschappij Amro	158
6.1	Introduction	158
6.2	The partners before the co-operation	158
6.3	The co-operation agreement of 12 February 1988	159
6.4	Practical achievements	162
6.5	Other possible structures	162
6.5.1	First structure: splitting the group into holding and operative companies	162
6.5.2	Second structure: the use of a fiscally transparent company type	164
6.6	Dissolution of the created integration — the weakened co-operation agreement of 29 September 1989	165
7	Renault Volvo	166
7.1	Introduction	166
7.2	The co-operating partners before the co-operation	167
7.2.1	Regié Nationale des Usines Renault SA	167
7.2.2	Volvo AB	168
7.2.3	Complementarity of the two partners	168
7.3	Origin and further evolution of the co-operation	169
7.4	Legal structure	171
7.4.1	Legal structure in the period 1991–93	171
7.4.2	The bi-national, horizontal group	175
7.5	Practical elaboration of the co-operation	179
7.6	Social, economic and company culture problems caused the bi-national, horizontal group to end	180
8	Conclusion	182
Chapter 7: General Conclusions		183
General Bibliography		185
Part II Bibliography		199
Index		211