
Contents

Preface	v
1. Some organizational principles for a dynamic small-firm industrial sector	1
Introduction	1
The organizational principles	2
Achieving economies of scale	2
Achieving economies of scope	3
The role of cooperation	4
Homogeneous value systems	9
Strong collective institutions	10
Rapid information dissemination	10
Entrepreneurial skills	12
Skilled labour	13
2. Creating an institutional framework	15
Introduction	15
Analysis groups	16
Government	18
The consensual environment	19
The regulatory environment	20
The benefit of appropriate regulations: The case of Italy	20
Labour market regulation	22
The harmonization of policies at different levels	27
Small-firm employers' organizations	28
Political influence	29
Decentralization	30
Communication and the provision of services	31
The creation of a social consensus	33
Trade unions and other workers' organizations	34
Small firms as marginal actors	35
Small firms: Potentially good contexts for labour	36
Trade union roles in promoting small-firm industrial sectors	37
Networking institutions	40
Industrial networking	40

Promoting independent firms	41
Promoting inter-firm networks and collaboration	44
Information networking	46
Sector-specific centres	47
Network brokers	51
Specialist consultants	52
Other upgrading institutions	53
Mechanisms for acquiring finance	53
Marketing institutions	55
Design centres	56
Training centres	57
3. Concluding remarks	59
Instruments of change	61
Existing models	63
Bibliography	65
Boxes
1. Achieving economies of scale	3
2. Small-firm efficiency in the European and Japanese machine-tool industries	4
3. The ceramic tile industry – Sassuolo, Italy	5
4. Small-firm cooperation in Sakaki, Japan	7
5. Creativity and entrepreneurial spirit in Emilia-Romagna, Italy	12
6. The demise of North London furniture firms	17
7. The influence of supranational powers: The case of the European Community	28
8. The role of a small-firm association: The CNA, Emilia-Romagna	32
9. A CNA member's view of the Association	33
10. Sectoral service centres and telematic systems	49