

CONTENTS

Introduction	5
Christopher Williams

Part One: Around a Première

1 Natural Magic and Science Fiction: Instruction, Amusement and the Popular Show, 1795-1895	13
Roberta McGrath
2 The Magic Lantern's Wild Years	24
Mervyn Heard
3 Realising the Vision: 300 Years of Cinematography	33
David Robinson
4 Première on Regent Street	41
Joost Hunningher
5 Frameup	55
John L. Fell
6 Filming Scenes in the United Kingdom for the Cinématographe Lumière	60
John Barnes
7 Marketing the Cinématographe in Britain	63
Richard Brown
8 Evidence of Editing in the Lumière Films	72
André Gaudreault
9 Back to Lumière, or, The Dream of an Essence: Some Untimely Considerations about a French Myth	82
Roland Cosandey

Part Two: Early Cinema – Then and Now

10 The Diffuse Beam: Cinema and Change	97
Simon Popple
11 Sport and the First Films	107
Luke McKernan
12 The Treats of Trickery	117
Michael Chanan
13 The Role of the Intertitle in Film Exhibition, 1904-1910	123
Martin Sopocy

14 'Nine Days' Wonder': Early Cinema and its Sceptics Stephen Bottomore	135
15 The Attractions of Cinema, or, How I Learned to Start Worrying about Loving Early Film Roberta E. Pearson	150
16 Re-Creating the First Film Shows Stephen Herbert	158
Part Three: Towards the Future
17 Cut and Shuffle Barry Salt	171
18 Little Big Screen Mark Shivas	184
19 The Social Art Cinema: a Moment in the History of British Film and Television Culture Christopher Williams	190
20 Don't Cry for Me when I'm Gone: Motion Pictures in the 1990s Paul Schrader	201
21 Read Only Memory: the Re-Creation of Sensorial Experience in 3D and CD-ROM David Mingay	207
22 Back to the Future: the Cinema's Lessons of History John Chittock	217
23 What is Cinema? The Sensuous, the Abstract and the Political Sylvia Harvey	228
Notes on Contributors	253
Index	257
Acknowledgements	263