

CONTENTS

Preface	x
Acknowledgements	xii
1 1 An Introduction to Counselling Children	1
Overview	1
The importance of counselling	1
Child therapy	3
Early relationships	5
Counselling as reparation	6
Counselling as self-development	9
The therapeutic alliance	9
Summary	11
2 Emotional Development	12
Overview	12
Human patterning	12
Conformity	13
Pre-birth experience	14
The first carer	16
The therapist as carer	19
Erikson's epigenetic stages	23
Stage 1	23
Stage 2	24
Stage 3	25
Stage 4	26
Stage 5	28
Stage 6	32
Stages 7 and 8	32
Winnicott	32
Transitional object	34
Potential space	34
Object relations theory	35
Play	35

Adolescence	36
Criticisms of Winnicott	36
Primary Needs	36
Summary	37
3 Psychodynamic Understanding of Children's Problems	39
Overview	39
Psychodynamic counselling	39
Working with the unconscious	40
Transference	41
Countertransference	42
Projection	42
Projective identification	43
Introjection	44
Containment	44
Privation and deprivation	45
Stigma	46
Anger	47
Depression, suicide and self-harm	48
Sickness, disability and death	51
Abuse	53
Summary	55
4 Play Therapy	56
Overview	56
The importance of play	56
Developing play	58
Play bringing together internal and external worlds	60
Adult interventions in play	65
The adult as observer	66
The invitation of the child to enter a new world	68
Exercise	69
Playing different roles	72
Making meaning of play	74
Interpretation	75
Summary	77
5 Using Creative Opportunities in Play Therapy	78
Overview	78
Painting and drawing	78
Drama and role play	82
Puppets	85
Prose and poetry	87

Sand and water play	89
Playroom equipment	92
Summary	94
6 Working with Diversity	95
Overview	95
Difference	95
Diverse values	96
Diverse physical features	97
Diverse learning abilities	99
Diverse cultures	101
Counsellor–client matching	102
Summary	104
7 Ethical Issues	106
Overview	106
Children and the law	106
Referrers	110
Confidentiality	111
In court	119
Professional negligence	120
Maintaining boundaries in counsellor–client relationships	121
Supervision	123
Summary	124
8 The Process of Counselling a Child	125
Overview	125
Assessment	125
The first session	129
The middle phase	133
Endings	142
Summary	148
9 The Child in Context	149
Overview	149
Systems	149
Groups	154
Summary	160
Conclusion	160
References	161
Bibliography	164
Index	167